THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING,, SEPTEMBER 12, 1890.—TEN PAGES.

TO RESTRICT NEGRO SUFFRAGE,

Judge Calhoun Says Is the Object of the Mississippi Convention.

JACKSON, Miss., September 11.—Judge Calboun, president of the constitutional convention, occupied the floor for nearly two hours today in support of his electoral college plank, which has been described in these dispatches. The judge reviewed all the franchise plans submitted to the convention and insisted that but the Campbell plan and that which e had presented himself—but of which he disclaimed paternity—would insure white control in the state. It was a law of divine ordination, he said, that the white race cannot tolerate divided sovereignty, and any legislature would have the stamp of idiocy upon it that would assemble such a body as this, with the enormods attendant expense, with an object short of this. Let the truth be told if it bursts the bettom out of the universe. The speaker did of share the apprehension of those who

THE NEW DISTRICTS

VOL. XXII.

UNDER THE CENSUS APPOINT-MENT OF 1890.

EFFECT ON PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

The Changes Made by the Census, Showing the Gains and Losses of the Different States - Reed Resumes His Seat.

WASHINGTON, September 11 .- [Special.]-The apportionment bill introduced in the house yesterday by Mr. Dunnell, chairman of the census committee, was drawn up by Sup-erintendent of Census Porter. It provides for one representative in congress for every 180,000 of population, which makes the number 354, of population, which makes the number 334, provided the estimates of the census office are correct. Under this bill, which, however, stands little chance of passing in its present shape, the membership of the present house will be as follows:

Alabama 9	Arkansas
California 7	Colorado
Connecticut 4	Delaware
Florida 2	Georgia
Idaho 1	Illinois
Indiana13	Iowa
Kansas 9	Kentucky
Louisiana 6	Maine
Maryland 6	Massachusetts
Michigan12	Minnesota
Mississippi 7	Missouri
Montana 1	Nebraska
Nevada 1	New Hampshire
New Jersey 8	New York
North Carolina 9	North Dakota
Ohio20	Oregon
Pennsylvania30	Rhode Island
South Carolina 7	South Dakota
Tennessee10	Texas
Vermont 2	Virginia
Washington 2	West Virginia
Wisconsin10	Wyoming
WISCOUSIN.	AND TORRES

Under the bill it will be seen from the above Coiorado, California, Alabama, Michigan, Oregan, Missouri, Washington, New Jersey, Texas and Wisconsin gain one each. Illinois, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Arkansas gain two each. Ohio and Virginia lose one each. The other states remain as they are at present. The states will gain and lose in the electoral college the same as in congress. One democratic and one republican state lose an elector-each, while of the twenty-three electors gained exclusive of the new states, excepting Washington, the republicans got eighteen and the democrats only five. Of the sixteen votes of the new states of Idaho, Montana, the two Dakotas and Wyoming, the republicans are certain of ten and probable thirteen, for they might get Idaho. The democrats will, however, carry Montana. This will add to the republican vote in the electoral college thirtyone, while to the democratic vote it will only add eight. Thus, under this bill, little under the estimate made in these dispatches yesterday, retaining the membership as it is, the democrats must carry both New York and Indiana to win in 1892. THE BILL WON'T PASS. However, it is not at all probable that Dun-nell's bill will pass. There might be very de-cided changes from the estimates in the population in the various states when the official count is made, and then the entire calculation will have to be made anew. The Dunnell bill, it is believed, was introduced for the purpose of calling attention to the new apportionment, and having the republicans commence figuring and figure until a bill is shaped up that will give them very decided advantage, both of controlling the house and winning in the next presidential election. That's what they are counting for, and if possible they will figure it out in such shape as to make a sure victory for the republican candidate in '92. The question is, can that be done? The democrats do not believe it. There is a feature in the Dunnell bill ering of O and Maryland. It provides that immediately after each census the various state legislatures shall redistrict the states, making each district as compact as practicable, and at the same time containing as near as possible an equal number of inhabitants. Then comes the new feature which reads, "and such redis-tricting, when made by such state legislature, shall not be changed by any succeeding legislature during the term of ten years, nor until under the next succeeding decennial census congress shall make a new apportionment." THE OHIO BLUNDER.

The republican members of congress are overjoyed at the discovery of the alleged omission of a part of Hamilton county, in the re-districting act recently passed by the Ohio legislature, and they are in earnest about over throwing the act, if the democrats have really blundered. Quay and the republican national committee have also become interested at the prospects of gaining six or seven congressmen they had not counted on. Butterworth and Grosvenor have been selected as a committee to see what can be done. These two gentle-men consulted with Solicitor General Taft, this afternoon, and have telegraphed to Cincinnati for all the facts. If it turns out as congress pass a joint resolution declaring the redistricting act null and void, and defining the districts as they were two years ago.

General Grosvenor has drawn up the resolution, and if his belief that part of Hamilton county has been omitted be true, as soon as he learns it positively, he will introduce the resolution and have it rushed through. The democratic members don't know whether the omission was or was not made, and theylare as anxious to learn the truth as the republicans. If it be true, it is feared Grosvenor's resolution will be rushed through congress before Governor Campbell can call an extra session of the Ohio legislature. As the districts are under the new act, the democrats will get thirteen out of twenty-one congressmen. In the old districts they can only elect five out of twentyone; therefore, the case is of the utmost importance to both parties.

SPEAKER REED RESUMES. Speaker Reed presided today. When he took the chair he was greeted with an enthustastic round of applause by the republicans, but the democrats were not in it. Reed immediately ordered a vote on approving the journal. There was no quorum present, however and rather than make another hopeless fight like that of yesterday, McKinley moved to adjourn, and it was carried amid democratic applause. This means that the republicans have decided to give up the contested election fight until they get a quorum here. This afternoon telegrams were sent out in every direction for absent republican members, and Reed says by Monday there will be enough republicans here to do business. Then Mr. Venable, of Virginia, will be turned out and the negro, Lang-

Judge Crisp today declined the invitation to go to Ohio and stump McKiuley's district in lavor of ex-Lieutenant Governor Warwick, the democratic candidate for congress. The judge cannot spare the time in the first place, and again he does not think it advisable for a southern democrat to stump Ohio in the inter est of the democratic party in that state.

THE TARIFF BILL IN THE HOUSE.
On account of the early adjournment of the house today, the tariff bill was not received from the senate. It will, however, come over tomorrow, and be referred at once to the ways and means committee. The committee will probably report back on Tuesday. A conference will be ordered at once, and it is probable the bill will be finally disposed of by the two houses during the latter part of next week, or the first of the week following.

THE NEW ORDER OF BUSINESS. In the order of business arranged by the re publican senators this morning for the remainder of this session, the compound lard bill was not included. This means the sill will go over until next session, and probably to its death, as it is understood the majority of members of the senate agricultural committee are WAR CLAIMS ALLOWED. In the bill which has just passed the house and is now pending in the senate, for the allowance of certain claims for stores and supplies, Levi W. Brooks, of Walker county, Georgia, gets $1,332; William R. Harper, of Chattooga, $1,161; Floyd S. Hudgins, of Chatteega, $1,413, and Luther Walters, of Floyd, $772. The passage of these claims was effected through the efforts of Mr. Clements.

REPUBLICAN SENATORS IN CAUCUS.

An Order of Business Arranged---Talking About Adjournment. Washington, September 11.-A caucus of republican senators was held this morning for the purpose of agreeing upon an order of business for the remainder of this session of congress. There was a full attendance of sena-tors and Mr. Edmunds presided. The caucus was in session nearly two hours. Nearly every member had a measure, which he deemed of member had a measure, which he deemed of sufficient importance to warrant its being placed on the order of business. It was decided, however, to limit the programme to the following bills, to be considered in the order named, after the report of the conference committee on the land grant forfeiture bill shall have been disposed of.

1. The auti-lottery mail bill.
2. The bill to repeal the timber culture act.
3. The bill to establish private land claim courts.

4. The bill for the relief of the suprem court.

5. The bill for the adjustment of claims of laborers, etc., under the eight-hour law.

6. The bill making eight hours a day's work for laborers, etc., in the government employ or employed by contractors doing government work.

7. The bill to transfer the revenue marine

7. The bill to transfer the revenue marine service from the treasury to the navy department.
8. The Paddock pure food bill.
9. The bill for the settlement of claims arising from Indian depredation.
10. The Terrey bankruptcy bill.
11. The bill to place telegraph companies under the operation of the interstate commerce law.

under the operation of the interstate commerce law.

12. The District of Columbia bills.

The question of adjournment was discussed only incidentally. It was the opinion, as far as expressed, that until the tariff bill had been finally disposed of the day for adjournment could not be intelligently fixed. Outside of the caucus the opinion was freely expressed that after the tariff bill had been disposed of a quorum could be held for only a short time. The Conger lard bill has no place in the above schedule. When the pure lard bill is reached in the senate, an opportunity will be offered for a motion to substitute for this measure the compound lard bill. This motion, it is understood, will be made by a friend of the lard bill.

Later in the proceedings while Mr. Cooper was upon the witness stand, Representative Flick, who took Smyser's place, sharply queried: "You know you are on oath, don't you?"

Mr. Cooper resented the implication conveyed by this question, and Mr. Flick con-"You have sworn a moment ago that you could take those books and sustain these

Mr. Cooper—I said I believed it. That sugestion of yours was ungentlemanly, cowardly

Chairman Morrill was for a time unable to restore order. By recess time, however, mutual explanations and apologies were made, and the offensive personalities were withdrawn.

As to the main purpose of the investigation, no more witnesses for the prosecution were present, and Mr. Cooper was summoned to the witness chair by Mr. Raum, who endeavored to extract from Mr. Cooper the names of parties who had given him the information that led to the introduction of the investigation resolution, but only two were named, one of whom was George B. Fleming. Raum said he was a discharged pension office employe and author of all the defamatory newspaper articles that had been published.

Tomorrow, at the pension office, testimony is to be taken of 138 clerks, who had been promoted by Raum, to show that they had not purchased stock in Raum's Refrigerator Company.

COLD COMFORT FOR PATRIOTS Who Went all the Way From North Car-olina to See Harrison.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 11.—[Special.]— The negro state convention, held here last month, appointed a committee of the influential negroes to go to Washington and lay be-fore the president the grievances of North Carolina negroes, and state that they were over-riden by white republican bosses, who gave them onna negroes, and state that they were overriden by white republican bosses, who gave them no positions. The removal of these bosses from office was to be asked for, and the demands of the negro for recognition in the distribution of patronage were to be plainly laid before the president. The committee went to Washington and has returned. One of its members says the president treated the committee very kindly, but that his manner and words showed that he had been informed of a resolution which was before the convention, but which was modified before it was adopted. The original resolution stated that the president had erred in his appointments in North Carolina, and also in ignoring the negroes. It was evident that some white republicans had sent the president a copy of the original resolution. The president told the committee he was sorry such a state of affairs, as it is reported, existed in North Carolina, but that he did not see how he could change it. The committee, therefore, got very cold comfort.

TILLMAN SELECTED

AS DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

THE OLD PARTY REMAINS INTACT. The Full State Ticket Nominated—The Platform Adopted by the Convention-Itedemocratic state convention adjourned this morning at 6:30 o'clock, after completing the state ticket, which is as follows: Governor, B. R. Tillman; lieutenant governor, E. B. Gary; secretary of state, J. E. Tindall; attorney general, H. B. Pope; treasurer, W. T. C. Bates; superintendent of education, W. D. Mayfield; comptroller general, W. H. Ellerbe; adjutant general, H. L. Farley. The lerbe; adjutant general, H. L. Farley. The platform is as follows:

The democratic party of South Carolina in convention assembled, hereby reaffirms the platform and principles of the national and state democratic party, particularly favoring the free and unlimited coinage of silver, increase of the currency and repeal of the internal revenue system. We denounce the McKinley tariff bill as unjust to producers of raw material and the consumers of the country, and especially do we condemn the unnecessary and burdensome increase in the tax on cotton ties and tin commodities, largely used by the poorer portion of our people. The passage of this bill by congress will encourage trusts, combines and monopolies, evils which have so long oppressed the people.

We denounce the Lodge force bill as iniquitous, emanating from minds whose nefarious purpose is to establish the supremacy of ignorance over intelligence in the southern states, thereby engendering race antagonism and sectional animosty.

telligence in the southern states, thereby engendering race antagonism and sectional animosty.

1. We condemn the action of Speaker Reed and his followers as a tyrannical and flagrant degradation of a position intended only for a true patriot and statesman.

2. We demand the enactment of laws that will-remove the burdens of the people and relieve ex-

CAPTAIN B. R. TILLMAN.

3. We demand the abolition of national banks

11. We demand that there shall be a survey of the state's phosphate beds, and their classification into three grades, and that a commission, composed of the governor, comptroller general and atterney general, shall control and direct the mining, under rigid rules, each river or phosphate district being leased at public auction for the term of three years, after the commission has fixed a minimum royalty according to the value, as shown by their survey.

CHARLESTON, September 11.—Speaking of the result of the democratic state convention, in Columbia, The News and Courier says:

in Columbia, The News and Courier says:

Only those who are familiar with the inside history of the recent campaign are aware of the hard struggle and constant exercise of patience and vigilance that were necessary to avoid an open and permanent division of the party. Only those who were admitted to the counsels of the straightout democracy can understand the sacrifice of personal preferences and of party pride that was made for the purpose of holding the party together. But choosing to submit to wrong, rather than to risk an injury to the state, they waived their rights and happily for the state and for the party, the democracy of South Carolina preserves an undived front. There is no appeal from the action of the democracic convention yesterday. Captain Tillman is the duly accredited standard-bearer of the party and he will be the next governor of South Carolina.

The News and Courier will watch his public career with interest. While censuring him, where censure is just, and critizing his words and acts where they deserve to be criticized, it will not withhold from him and his works the approval they shall honestly deserve. His official acts will be squared by his public promises, and his administration will be judged by itself.

The Newport Election.

Newport, R. I., September 11.—The count of ballots cast in yesterday's election was completed at 4:10 o'clock this morning. Thomas Coggeshall, republican, is elected mayor by 108 majority. The republicans also elected five out of ix saldermen; ten out of fifteen councilmen and three out of four school committee—

The Third District Nomination.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., September 11.—[Special.]—The third congressional republican convention was held here today. Congressman H. Clay Evans was nominated unanimously for congress. This was followed by the senatorial convention, which nominated J. H. Early, of South Pittsburg. The county legislative convention was also held. B. R. Thomas and J. B. Hawkins were nominated.

tailed to insure that supremacy by peaceful methods, he would, in case a negro was hereafter killed in a political riot, regard himself and every member of the convention as accessory to the murder.

The speaker then made an elaborate constitutional argument to prove that the plan he favored was republican in form. It will be remembered that this plan divides the state into thirteen gerrymandered election districts, eight of which will have white majorities, and that these electors shall elect all state and county officers, the state senate and legislature alone to be elected by the people.

Judge Morris, of Wayne, and Delegates Gore, of Webster, Coffee, of Jefferson, and McGhee, of Franklin, also addressed the convention. There is no prospect of a vote on the suffrage question before the latter part of next week. THE VIRGINIA DEMOCRATS Looking Over the Situation in the Con gressional District. RICHMOND, Va., September 11.—[Special.]

At the meeting here today of the democratic state and executive committees, called by Chairman Ellison for general conference, there were eight out of ten congressional districts represented. None of the Virginia congressmen were present, and the only candidate in attendance was W. A. Jones, of the first district. He as expressed, that until the tariff bill had been finally disposed of the day for a djournment shall be legal tender in the payment of the cancus the opinion was freely expressed that after the tariff bill had been disposed of a quorum could be held for only a short time. The Conger lard bill has no place in the above schedule. When the pure lard bill is reached in the senate, an opportunity will be offered for a motion to substitute for this measure the compound lard bill. "YOU'RE A DIRTY DOG,"

"YOU'RE A DIRTY DOG,"

Is What Mr. Flick Said to Mr. Cooper in the Raum Investigation.

"Washington, September 11.—Right at the beginning of its session this morning, the special house committee investigating the charge gainst Commissioner Raum had the usual daily tilt. Mr. Lewis, democratic member, rising to a personal question said that he had been credibly informed that while he was engaged in conversation with Smyser, who was on the stand the other day, the chairman had said that his (Lewis's) conduct was not gentlemanly and he wanted a retraction.

Chairman Morrill said he had no recollection of having made such a remark and Mr. Sawyer also denied that it had been made, the state of the control to the latter at the committeen in the stand the other day, the chairman had said that his (Lewis's) conduct was not gentlemanly and he wanted a retraction.

Chairman Morrill said he had no recollection of having made such a remark and Mr. Sawyer also denied that it had been made, the state of the control to the propose of the control to the people without finity to the rain the proceedings while Mr. Cooper was upon the witness stand, Representative Filek, who took Smyser's place, sharply queried. A. Jones, of the first district. He told of what is being done in his locality, and agreed with the district chairman that harmony prevails, and the chances are good for electing the democratic nominee. In fact, he thinks there is no doubt whatever with a full vote. The reports from the third, fifth, sixth, seventh, feighth, minth and tenth districts were all encouraging, and the committeemen express the utmost confidence in the result. The second and fourth are the only districts in which nominations have not been made by the democrats, and the convention for the former meets at Suffolk on the 24th, and for the latter at Petersburg a term of three years, after the commission has fixed a minimum royalty according to the value, as shown by their survey.

Always heretofore the North Carolina demo-crats and republicans have kept their party lines drawn with exceeding sharpness, par-ticularly in negro counties, but a step has now been taken which marks a new departure. This is a compromise made by the democrats and republicans in Halifax county, which is one of the chief negro counties. By the terms of this there is to be only one set of candidates. The democrats are to nominate the sheriff and treasurer, the republicans, clerk, registrar of deeds, surveyor and coroner, the Farmers' Al-liance the legislative candidatas. The Farm-ers' Alliance engineered this agreement. It nance the legislative candidatas. The Farmers' Alliance engineered this agreement. It is made to prevent an acrimonious debate. The result will be watched with interest. Neither of the three parties, if the alliance may be termed a party, binds its members to vote for the candidates. The agreement is positive that there shall be only one ticket in the field.

12. We demand that a constitutional convention be called to give us an organic law, framed by our own people. We believe the present law to be a standing menace to our civilization and to our educational institutions, and that we cannot obtain any great relief from our burdensome taxes till this is done, and we have lost faith in the power to amend the present constitution so that it will answer the requirements.

13. We rely upon the sense of justice and enlightened self-interest of our fellow-citizens to enforce these demands, and we call upon and invite every citizen who has the interest of his state at heart to assist us in enforcing these needed reforms. We condemn any attempt, either by word, deed or unholy alliance with the enemy, to disrupt the democratic party of this state. White supremacy is the bulwark of our civilization, and can only be secured by democratic unity.

WHAT THE NEWS AND COURIER SATS.

CHARLESTON, September 11.—Speaking of The Colored Alliance in Politics CHARLESTON, S. C., September 11.—[Special.]—The Afro-American Farmers' Alliance is following the footsteps of his white brother and is going into politics. The first development of this occurred today, when the republican ment of this occurred today, when the republican convention split into two factions. One of these is pledged to nominate Dr. W. D. Crum, a rather intelligent colored man, for congress from the first district. The other will nominate W. A. Grant, a rich colored butcher, who is also president of the colored alliance, and has been measured up by the alliance yard stick, like his white brethren. He favors the subtreasury and the force bill. The democratic candidate is Colonel W. H. Bradley, a prominent criminal attorney, who beat H. A. Metz, the alliance candidate, in the recent democratic convention. Grant is the recent democratic convention. Grant is backed by Brayton, the state chairman, and Charles Minart, a rich barkeeper, in this city. He will get the colored alliance vote, he says, if he has to run as an independent.

Columbia, Tenn., September 11.—[Special.] The democratic convention for the seventh congressional district completed its organization today by the adoption of the majority report on the committee on credentials. This report was bitterly fought by the Whitthorne delegates, because in two districts in Laurens county their delegates received a majority of the votes cast, but the report recommended that both the Whitthorne and Cox set of delegates be seated, and the adoption of this report has had the effect of cementing the minority, and it is now doubtful if either Cox or Whitthorne will be nominated, as a deadlock is on in full force. The Deadlock Is On.

The Feeling in South Carolina. The Feeling in South Carolina.

Spartanburg, S. C., September 11.—[Special.]—Since the news from the state convention reached here, nothing but an expression of relief has been heard. The feeling had been running so high that it was feared there would be a split in the party; and now it is over, and the democracy of the state is still intact, every faction is feeling well over it. This city was strongly anti-Tillman, but will stick to the party and support heartisy its nominee. THEY MET CHAUNCEY

AND HE COULD NOT GIVE THEM CONSOLATION.

COMMITTEE OF THE CENTRAL MEN Call Upon Mr. Depew, But He Informed the

Strikers That Their Places Had Been Filled and He Could do Nothing.

NEW YORK, September 11 .- A committee of five of the employes of the New York Central railway, who went out on the strike, called on President Depew at the Grand Central depot today. They were headed by Thomas Balloney, an old freight conductor, and Gaffney, another striker, acted as spokes-man. The following conversation between Mr. Depew and Mr. Gaffney followed: Gaffney—We have come to talk over the strike on the New York Central road. Depew-I am afraid there is nothing to talk about. The strike is virtually over now. Gaffney-The strike is not over, because the men on the road, who are members of labor or-not share the apprehension of those who thought that any change of the constitution that would have the effect of depriving a great number of negroes of the right to vote would involve the state of Mississippi in a conflict with congress. He thought that there was no probability of such a conflict, as it was generally conceded among lawyers that the fundamental conditions of the act of 1870 were unconstitutional, and that Mississippi had the right to impose educational or propganizations have quit work and are now out. Depew-They have chosen to resign their positions. Mr. Webb, who was managing the road in my absence, took new men in their places when they quit work. His action has were unconstitutional, and that Mississipple had the right to impose educational or property qualifications as other states, provided there was no discrimination on account of race been sustained by the executive board of man-agement of the road. The places of those men have now been filled and that's the end of it.

Mr. Gaffney then asked Mr. Depew to wait

there was no discrimination on account of race or color.

"But," he continued, "if the worst comes to the worst and we lose some of our representation in congress, we can stand it complacently, if allowed to manage our local and state affairs undisturbed." Even the presidency, he said, was a matter of insignificance compared with local self-government. He did not propose to mince matters and hide behind a subterluge, but if asked by anybody if it was the purpose of the convention to restrict negro suffrage he would frankly answer: "Yes, that is what we are here for."

The fiat had gone forth that fraud, force and intimidation must cease, and if the convention failed to insure that supremacy by peaceful methods, he would, in case a negro was hereafter killed in a political riot, regard himself antil the committee had discussed the matter and said they would then return and make their proposition to him.

Mr. Depew replied: "There is no use in making false promises to you, There is nothing more to be done. I do not care to talk over back numbers. You have chosen to resign your places. Mr. Webb has filled them and I have nothing more to say."

The committee then left the office.

THE SOUTHAMPTON STRIKE.

Burns and Other Leaders Advise the Men to Return to Work.

SOUTHAMPTON, September 11.-In an interview after the conference one of the dock-men's leaders, named McCarthy, said that the fact that the strike had been begun without the authority of the London executive, precluded the hope of success. The dockers had been warned against precipitate action, but they chose to disregard that advice. The executive had telegraphed that no strike pay would be sent to the striking dockmen, and that if they continued the strike they must rely upon local aid. McCarthy strongly condemned the Southampton union for acting against the advice of the executive.

John Burns has arrived here from London with further instructions from the executive regarding the handling of the strike. The derision of the conference to resume work is fiercely opposed by a strong minority of the strikers, and the final decision has been post-poned until tomorrow. The concession means the rise of a penny an hour. The question of employing non-union men is left open. The dock company has managed to have all perishable cargoes unloaded. This and other work that was urgently necessary has been done by men whom the company retained in the docks. Blacklegs were not employed.

At a mass meeting of strikers tonight, McCarthy and other speakers emphasized the fact that the men were now able to resume work without being subjected to any punishment, and that their return would not involve a loss of dignity or prestige on the part of the union. It would be an act of folly, the speakers held, for the men to continue to throw themselves against cold steel. CITY OF MEXICO, via Galveston, September 11.—According to advices received here of the shooting of General Barrundia on board the American steamship Acapulco, at St. Jose de Guatemala, Captain Pitts, of the Acapulco, has made a declaration which the Guatemalan authorities claim completely justifies their action.

The dispatch above mentioned further says that when Captain Toriello and Captain Pitts read to Barrundia the order for his delivery to the Guatemalan authorities. Barrundia asked permission to change his clothes, which was granted. Turning away, Barrundia suddenly grasped two revolvers and fired on Toriello, Pitts and the policemen, who in return fired on Barrundia, killing him. Captain Pitts had taken the precaution of ordering the passengers to withdraw, otherwise some of them would undoubtedly have been hurt by the bullets from Barrundia's pistol.

DEATH OF EDWARD DEGENERA An Ex-Congressman, and a Life-Long

Republican, SAN ANTONIO, Tex., September 11.—[Special.]—Ex-Congressman Degener, of this city, died at his home here this morning, after a lindied at his nome here this morning, after a in-gering illness, aged eighty-one years. Mr. Dege-ner was a republican, and was a member of the last constitutional convention of this state that evolved the constitution that is now in opera-tion, and he was also for several terms a memtion, and he was also for several terms a mem-ber of the house of representatives of the Texaş legislature. He served as congressman of this congressional district from 1870 to 1872. He was prominent in municipal politics, and was a very successful and extensive lumber mer-chant. Bloody Scenes on a Train.

CHATTANOGA, Tenn., September 11.—
Special.—A terrible fight with pistols and knives occurred on the incoming Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis train tonight. When the train passed Tullahoma a drunken crowd of men, who had been attending the confederate re-union at Tullahoma, boarded it. A row occurred, and shots were fired. Charles Anderson, son of a wealthy farmer of Anderson station, was cut six times, and will probably die. A citizen of Tracy City was shot badly in the head and a resident of Tullahoma was badly cut in the forehead. It is not known who stabbed Anderson.

The Mother of a Missing Girl Fails to Recognize the Corpse Sent Her.

Montgomery, Ala., September 11.—[Spe-

She acted strangely and suspiciously, and left in a day or two. Perry street in this city. She acted strangely and suspiciously, and left in a day or two, mysteriously, leaving her trunk containing her clothing behind. Three or four days afterwards, a young woman was found dead in her bed at the Madison house, having taken an overdose of morphine. Her remains, while at the undertaker's establishment, were recognized by friends of the family as those of Minnie Bargainer, of Fort Deposit, a small village thirty-five miles south of Montgomery. The remains were shipped to Fort Deposit, at the request of the family. Today Mrs. Bargainer, the mother of Minnie Bargainer, came to Montgomery and called on Chief of Police Gerald and created a sensation in police circles by declaring that the remains of the young woman shipped to Fort Deposit were not those of her daughter. She said she had examined the body for a birthmark, which she failed to find, and that she did not recognize a single feature of the dead woman, and besides she was a great deal older than her daughter, who she declared positively was only fifteen years old, while the deceased looked to be at least twenty, if not older. She did not even recognize the purse of the deceased looked to be at least twenty, if not older. She did not even recognize the purse of the deceased looked in her room at the Madison house the same woman who left the Perry street private boarding house mysteriously? If not, where is Minnie Bargainer and who is the woman found dead in her room at the Madison house the same woman who left the Perry street private boarding house mysteriously? If not where is Minnie Bargainer and who is the woman found dead? The police are investigating.

WYOMING'S FIRST ELECTION.

Both Parties Claim the State-Returns Are Slow In Coming In.

Slow In Coming In.

CHEYENNE, Wyoming, September 11.—
The first state election in Wyoming came off today. The utmost enthusiasm was shown by both political parties, but it is doubtful if the vote will be large. The Australian ballot system was introduced the first time, and with the registration system. Until within a few days it was understood that the law contained a clause—that when through the absence or illness anybody failed to register, they would be permitted to swear in their vote on election day. Although a clause to this effect passed both houses of the last legislature, and appears in both journals, for some reason it fails to appear in the enrolled copy of the law, or in the printed copy.

This omission disfranchised a very large number of voters. In 1888 the total vote castwas 18,008. Carey, republican, for delegate in congress, received a majority of 2,292. At this hour, 10 c'clock p. m., it is very difficult to tell much about the result. Some of the precincts are over 150 miles from the county seat, and comparatively little can be heard from them. The republicans claim the state by 1,500, while the democrats claim it by from £.0 to 1,500. This is on the governorship. The belief here is that the republicans stand a better chance of securing the legislative ticket than the governors.

CHEATING LIFE COMPANIES. Another Corpse Trust Case Found in Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., September 11.—[Special.]—Another corpse trust case, similar to that of the celebrated Bond case was brought to tight here today in the arrest of Max Gellhorn, an ex-agent of the Home Friendly Insurance Society, of Baltimore. Gellhorn was discharged from the Home Friendly, and took the agency of the Globe, of Baltimore. Recently suspicion was attached to Gelhorn of irregularities while he was with the Home Friendly Society. Mr. B. L. Talley, the vice president of the society, came to the city to work the matter up. He soon found that the suspicions were correct, and that Gellhorn had been guilty of some serious crimes. Gellhorn, as the agent of the Home Friendly Company, had deliberately cheated and defrauded the company by means of fraudulent claims and Charleston. company by means of fraudulent claims and forged medical certificates. He had collected quite an amount of money. Charlotte A. Wyles had been reported dead, and money collected on her policy by this man. Mr. Tal-Wyles had been reported dead, and money collected on her policy by this man. Mr. Talley investigated this case, and found that if Charlotte was a corpse, she was a mighty lively one. Several other alleged corpses were unearthed. Gellhorn had, by forgeries, made the company believe that he was the relative of these parties as far as collecting their insurance was concerned. The amount thus collected is not known.

Gellhorn was before a justice today, and agreed to refund the stolen money and leave the city.

LON DUNLAP GUILTY.

THE ASSAILANT OF MRS. TAYLOR CONVICTED.

The Story of the Assault on Mrs. Taylor-Pursuit of the Crimi The Lynching Party.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., September 11.—[Special.]—The jury in the case of the state vs.
Lon Dunlap, Andrew J. Speer and Tom Harvey, persons of color, charged with rape, re-turned a verdict of guilty as to Lon Dunlap, with recommendation to mercy.

On the person of Mrs. John Taylor this crime was committed May the 29th, and the excitement which prevailed at the time is familiar to the readers of The Constitution.

THE ARREST OF THE PRISONERS. The citizens scoured the country at the time and arrested several negroes, who were carried before Mrs. Taylor for identification. Among these were three negroes in the employ of th Richmond and Danville railroad, who had a close call on their way here to jail. It was noised abroad that these negroes were the right parties and that they had been identified, the consequence of which was that a large body of citizens held up the train between this place and Suwanee with the purpose of giving them a short and speedy trip into the next world. The lynchers adopted a very novel scheme by which they might hold up the trian, which was very sucssful, indeed. About the time the train was due, every man hied himself toward the woods, except a few, where they laid con-cealed until they got orders from those left at the railroad. The party on the road waited until they saw the train nearing the place with the prisoners on board. When the train came in sight it was waved down, the engineer not thinking that anything was wrong. THE SIGNAL GIVEN.

The party boarded the train and gave a signal to those concealed in the woods to come forward. The conductor, seeing a hundred or more people rising as if from the ground, was not long to realize the situation. and before any of the party from the woods could reach the train the engineer with his engine was going headlong towards Lawrence ville, but he was minus the coaches. Some fellow had uncoupled the cars. Everything looked gloomy then for the prisoners. They were already seized upon and were about to l carried out of the cars when the sheriff and a number of others interceded in their behalf and saved their necks by stating that absolute proof could be had to establish their innocence, statement, upon investigation, was found to be true.

OTHER PERSONS CAUGHT. There were several other parties carried be fore the lady who partly filled the description she gave of them, but she recognized none until Lon Dunlap, the negro found guilty to day, was arrested. He was carried before her and she said he looked like one of them. The negro confessed the whole affair, telling everything connected with the crime, which corrorborated in many particulars by the surrounding circumstances. In his confession h charged Tom Harvey and Andrew J. Speer as being the other two parties to the assault, whose trial will come off tomorrow.

Since his confinement in jail, however, he denies the trath of his confession, and says it was obtained from him at the point of shotguns and pistols.

The counsel for the defense will make a motion for a new trial.

abundant proof of the alleged sale of Olivo's vote and then failing to bring it forward. He says that above all other things he wants the whole matter sifted thoroughly, and expresses a perfect willingness to let the dirt settle where it belongs. He says Mr. Roane should substantiate his charges, if he has any witnesses as he claims. As to the conclusion of Mr. Roane's article of today, he treats such with contempt, and styles it as bravado and unworthy of notice.

Judge Lawson has never been charged by Mr. Roane with any complicity in this affair, neither have his friends, but the judge is not willing to let even an imputation rest upon his side, and evinces a desire that the whole matter shall be cleared up and the blame be settled on the shoulders of the guilty party, if, indeed, there has been anything wrong done. It is not beyond probability that a personal difficulty may result from the whole affair. Things are now getting into a bad shape for an amicable settlement, and it may be that the wrath of the parties will boil over ere long. There is one determination on every hand, and that is that any odium now resting upon the eighth congressional district shall be removed.

He advocated Winn for congress, and said that the people of the minth republican district were not ready or willing to be represented by a republican who went over to the enemy during the civil war and fought the south, or by an independent who deserted his colors and lay out until the close of the war. He charged that Pickett was absent without leave from his regiment (Sixty-fith) in September, 1862, and that he deserted in the month of August, 1863. In confirmation of this statement, he exhibited a certified copy of the muster, roll of the regiment, now on file in the war department at Washington. Washington.

ston. CONVERS, Ga., September 11 .- [Special.]-General John B. Gordon addressed a crowded house today, during the recess of court. He was introduced by Judge McCalla, who paid him a glowing eulogy.

In his speech Governor Gordon recognized the enthusiasm of his reception, especially referring to the many farmers present. His references to Colonel Livingston and Dr. Macune were keen, and attracted much attention The governor's reception was enthusiastic and highly gratifying. GORDON FOR SENATOR.

From The Meriwether Free Press. The alliance is much divided as to the subtreasury measure, and would it not, therefore, be un-wise for us to make it a political issue? No, breth-ren, we should not antagonize John B. Gordon, the battle-scarred soldier, the true and tried patriot and statesman who has proven his friendship and sympathy for the toiling masses, and who has done so much for Georgia and the south, simply because he does not favor the subtreasury bill.

From the Carnesville Tribune.

Macune has been leading Georgia farmers around about as long as they are willing to be led. When he tries to mass them against John B. Gordon, he will find that his subtreasury lead string is threadbare.

From the Cumming Clarion For one we are unalterably opposed to any one who may be dickering to defeat Governor G for United States senator. To set aside a for United States senator. To set aside a man who represents in his own person the chivalry of the south, one whose conservatism has made Bourbons wince, a man whose eloquence in Chicago, and touch of the old flag, brought tears to all patriots, and cemented hearts once rent asunder; to set him aside for any one in Georgia would bean inexcusable blunder in some and a moral crime in others. Where is the man in Georgia who will not trust Governor Gordon in preference to Dr. Macune, the legislator of the Farmers' Alliance He has been tried. Ever true to his conviction of duty, no one was braver in war, truer in por more beloved by his countryme. From The Oglethorpe Echo.

It is announced that Gordon and the Atlanta ring are not on as amicable terms as they once were. This should not be put down as anything against the governor in his candidacy.

BABY BEARS IN ALBANY. Romeo and Juliet Play Their Parts in An-

ALBANY, Ga., September 11.—[Special.]—
Some three or four months since two of the cutest little baby bears were brought into Albany that could be imagined. They were sold to separate parties, but at last they both came into possession of the same gentleman, and they were as happy as possible. It was a never ending source of delight to see the little fellows play and wrestle together, and their cunning baby ways and their queer anties would bring a smile of amusement upon the faces of the most serious and sedate. One was named Romeo, and the other being of the gentler sex, if this distinguishing characteristic prevails among the brutes, was, of course, dubbed Jullet. This week the former was found in the early morning lying stiff in death. Juliet was sobbing bitterly, and refused to be comforted. All night the little creature mourned the loss of her companion. Romeo had lately been taken from a diet of milk to something more substantial. Being fed from the scraps of a restaurant, it is supposed that it proved too rich for his blood, and so he fell a victim to good living.

Juliet is to be sent to Atlanta to the Gress zoo, and she will doubtless at once become a great favorite with the little people of the Gate City.

It concerns, in the first place, a well-known telegraph operator, and will prove interesting to certain railroad officials in Indiana.

By that accident fifteen people were hurled nto eternity.

that is to carry him so many miles from home, he said:

"I don't mind going away from home, friends and kindred, if the trip will take away the horrible recollection of one night in my life. I did nothing criminal; it was simply a mistake—and yet I'd give anything if I could be punished in some way for what I have done. Not that I think I'm guilty of any crime; but the cries of those people will ring in my ears always, and make me feel as if I were a criminal. I know the step I am taking is a serious one, but I want to get away from the country, and, if old ocean treats me as I wish, all of the past will drift away like a bad dream."

Mr. Hull seemed very much in earnest, and impressed the reporter so much that even pity was aroused. He imagines that he is bound to answer sor the souls of the fifteen people answer sor the souls of the little people killed in the collision, and thinks that consequently he is doomed for eternal punishment. Evidently he believes this, for he is trying to drown his sorrows in taking up a mode of life altogether unfitted for a man of his caliber.

Mr. Hull will probably return during the next year, and resume his former vocation.

DEATH OF A VENERABLE LADY. The Wife of a Minister, and a Nobl Woman.

LAGRANGE, Ga,, September 11 .- [Special.] Mr. A. J. Boyd and wife received a letter from Rev. Frank McMurray last Sunday, anouncing the sudden death of his wife on Wendesday, at Franconia, Ala.

The letter was delayed en route, and hence the late day at which the sad intelligence reached them. Mrs. McMurray had been very ill for several weeks with rheumatism and neuralgia. The disease attacked the heart and quickly terminated in her death. The mournful news created a feeling of sadness among those in our community who knew the deceased lady, for she was a noble Christian, deceased lady, for she was a noble Christian, a devoted pastor's wife, and endeared to a large circle of friends.

She was the daughter of the late Joseph Boyd, of Hogansville, and was in the sixty-second year of her age. She was the sister of Messrs. A. J. Boyd, of LaGrange, and W. M. Boyd, of Hogansville. She leaves a venerable husband, two daughters and two sons to mourn the death of wife and mother. The body was buried in the cemetery near where she lived. Mr. McMurray has recently removed from Gadsden to Franconia, where he is pastor of Gadsden to Franconia, where he is pastor of Gadsden to Franconia, where he is pastor of

Up by a Mob.

Memphis, Tenn., September 11.—An Appeal special from Amory, Miss., says: Steve Crump and George Boalter, both colored, were convicted of rape on the persons of Mrs. Callahan, aged sixty-five, and Miss Hathaway. The prisoners were turned over to the sheriff, who started with them to jail where they were to await sentence. On the way a mob of 200 unmasked men forced him to give up the prisoners, and the mob soon swung them from the limb of a tree near bye.

Hard Times in Southern Russia.

London, September 11.—A dispatch to the News from Odessa says: A veritable panic prevails among the South Russian grain exporters, owing to the unprecedentedly rapid rise in the value of roubles. For the first time in fourteen years exchange on London is quoted at 7 roubles 80 copecks. The whole Russian export trade is demoralized; though the harvest will be good, there is no doubt that the season will close with a general crash. Two southern exporters have already failed. Smaller producers are suffering severely, owing to the low prices at which they are compelled to sell. The government policy of raising the tariff is suicidal.

LONDON, September 11.—The Times says:

The McKinley bill in all its stages has shown public opinion in America, in respect to economic principles, to be in a retrograde rather than progressive condition. Great Britain's regret is that its unselfish parliament is most unilkely to retaliate. The penal articles of the meat inspection bill will probably never come into operation. The balance of the strife over pork trade seems plainly in favor of Europe. The dangerous precedent of investing a republican magistrate with the attributes of an autocrat is a question for the American people to settle with themselves and their prepresentatives.

Delayed by a Wreck,

ALBANY, N. Y., September 11.—No trains have arrived here from New York since 7:30 o'clock tonight, owing to a disastrous wreck at Schodak, sixteen miles below this city, on the New York Central railroad. The railroad authorities here say that an extra freight train collided with a regular freight train, owing to a misplaced switch, and a few freight cars left the track. It has been learned from other sources, however, that the wreck is very disastrous, two engines, ten cars and caboese being piled up, so as to cover the passenger tracks as well as the freight tracks. Two engineers, fireman and brakeman are killed, and three others are wounded.

weitten for The Constitution. "Do you see that tall, ugly man there at the telegraph office? Now—see, he's gone to get a glass of ice water."

I see him," I assented. "Well, he can tell you a story which will make your hair curl." "Hardly, in this hot weather!"

"All the same I mean what I say."
"Do you know him?"

"Slightly; he's not been here long, but I met him at the lodge." "Lodge?" "Yes, we are both Masons, and if you coulp persuade him to let you have his narrative, o course, suppressing his true name, I think it would repay you for your trouble." "What is the story?" "Let him tell you that. I'ts known to no one here, I think, save myself; and he may be willing to let you have it under the reservation

Will you introduce me?" "Certainly; here he comes."

In another minute I was shaking hands with subject of our brief talk. He was a man of about forty-five years of age, slightly grizzled as to hair and beard, with a nasty scar on his right cheek, temple and forehead; a livid, blue scar it was at times, as I learned afterwards, but rather skillfully concealed, for the most part, by a thick growth of whiskers on the cheek and low, overhangof whiskers on the cheek and low, overlang-ing tufts of hair trained down on the temple. It was a very unpleasant looking sear and was evidently made by one and was not the result of several blows, as I had at first imagined. He had a very dark complexion, and this, with the acquiline nose and keen, pierc-ing, dark eyes, would have made him a com-ng, dark eyes, would have made film a com-plete Lascar, in appearance, had he but had a pair of brass rings in his ears.

Thinking of this, I glanced at his ears, and was shocked to find that his right ear was completely gone.

Certainly he was not a prepossessing person age so far as beauty goes, but as he firmly grasped my extended hand and smiled, a change swept swiftly over his features which change swept swiftly over his features which almost transfigured them. In a moment, oven ere we relaxed the grasp of friendly acquaintance—I felt that I liked him. I cannot give a better reason for this sudden change of my feelings towards him than the simple fact that he smiled.

He did not grimace, did not seem delighted to meet me, he simply smiled; and with that smile the stern mouth softened, the hardened muscles of cheek and chin relaxed, and from his large luminous eyes I thought I could see muscles of cheek and chin relaxed, and from his large, luminous eyes I thought I could see into the man's very soul. There was something so frank, so honest, so simple about his manner, and his glance was so direct and true that I hurriedly revised my hasty judgment, and even felt glad that I grew red and confused under that frank and steadfast gaze as the only means whereby I could mutely apologize for such a premature and ill-considered an opinion of him as I had

In stature he was about five feet ten or eleven inches tail, with no great breadth of shoulder, but with an extraordinarily deep chest; or, as it is sometimes termed, he was "barrel-bodied," and men of that peculiar conformation are generally gifted with wonderful physical strength.

He was handsomely clad in dark cloth and carried in his hand a rather bizarre-looking cane, made of some crooked, twisting wood, capped with an ivory head of some Chinese-Corean or Japanese god of the most immaculate ugliness—the two eyes whereof seemed formed of brilliants of unusual size and value. All this I remarked as the ceremony of introduction was being performed, and the following story, after a little hesitation, he told me as we were seated told me as we were scated in the reading room of the Kimball house, where day after day and month after month, coming and going are to be seen people whose fame is world-wide and men who like my interlocutor had had such strange experiences as would put fiction to the blush and condemn the romancer's imagination to a condition of perspennel frazen astonishment. dition of perpetual frozen astonishment.

When we were seated Mr. Hilton spoke:

I lost my father before the war. My mother married again, and died and when I was four-of Chinese teas has been considerably lowered in European and American markets and in the choicer grades the teas of India and those from along the coast of the archipelago, have rapidly taken their places. It was to personally examine into this state of things that, after consultation with my partner, I determined to go up the river and far into the interior and to see and judge for myself not only as to the condition of the ensuing crop, but as to the methods of curing, etc., lately in vogue, which had given our once high grade teas such a setback in the markets of the world; for on our last invoice to London we had suffered a positive loss instead of securing the profits we had expected, though I knew that the teas were not up to the standard before our vessel steamed out of the harbor.

"Well, as Brent and I were both fond of sport, we had had long ere this a large and handsome sampan fitted up with all conveniences for shooting, eating and sleeping and upon this sampan I determined to make the trip. Brent, of course, could not accompany me, but in his stead I took a young Welshman, a trusted clerk in the employ of our firm, who was as brave as a lion is said to be (and a good deal braver than his majesty really is), but who was inordinately fond of liquor, as I discovered too late. This latter trait on such a voyage as ours was a serious menace to our safety, but barring this Jones was a good fellow and a perfect stoic in the matter of putting up with mosquitoes, files, swamp-gnats (hay-po-tang), and any and all inconveniences.

"I had some difficulty in engaging a crew for a voyage so long and so uncertain as to its duration in time, and when I had them all aboard I was not at all pleased with their appearance taken en masse; but it was the best we could do, so late one Saturday afternoon we bade Brent and the whole entourage of our establishment farewell, and swept out into the crowded river.

crowded river.

"And what a stream that is! War vessels of large tomage with their gigantic guns; steamers and large sailing vesse; from all ports on earth, possiblys boats of all kinds moving hither and to—from the frail craft of the fisherman to the magnificent bulk of the Collosus or the Benbow, while junks and dhows glided swiftly by and mingled confusedly with the sampans and houseboats, on board of which, as at Siam's capital, Bangkok, hundreds of thousands of capital, Bangkok, hundreds of thousands of people are born and live and die on the water, while ever and anon some great mandarin's official junk, with its huge staring eye in the bow flashing in the sunlight, with its row of shields on either side, and its decks filled with armed man would come dashing by armed men, would come dashing by at full speed, its gong sounding all the time to counsel men to make way for all the time to counsel men to make way for the representative of his august majesty, the emperor of China, and the brother of the sun and the moon—all this riot of craft im-possible to realize by verbal description, we finally made our way through and began our mairy made our way threagn and began our long journey in earnest.

"The details of the trip I need not give you. We rapidly ascended the river, stopping at times to shoot, to seek the information we needed, and at times at numberless large cities which stud the banks of that mighty stream to make contracts for tea for immediate or future delivery. As often as Levelld I required way delivery. As often as I could I remitted my partner an account of our proceedings. "Up to the time when we had begun to pen-etrate far into the interior into regions wilder, etrate far into the interior into regions wider, and as yet barely known, save to explorers and missionaries, our rather sullen crew had given no overt sign of insubordination. I repeatedly cautioned Jones, my Welshman, against them, but he, like most Britishers, was reckless and despised the 'beggars' too much to fast his head about them. But I was not at all at ease, and never, waking or sleeping, did I leave my Winchester rifle and revolvers out of arm's reach. Finding remonstrance of no use with Jones, who about this time began to drink heavily, I had to threaten him with my serious displeasure as a consequence, he being serious displeasure as a consequence, he being half drunk at the time. We had a violent quarrel—the most unfortunate thing which could have happened, and which, I saw, the crew noted with a satisfaction they did not try to conceal.

"There was one man among the crew basides my own trusty servant. Sam

"There was one man among the crew besides my own trusty servant, Sam Hing, whom I thought to make a a partial confident of. This was a strapping big Mantchoo from northern China named Chin Fun. I had made him boatswain, and he seemed an honest fellow if not too intelligent. Him I called into the cabin and spoke disscreetly with upon the situation. He grew ashy pale under his yellow skin and shuffled uneasily from one foot to another. At last he admitted that something might happen if we were not careful, and wound up by remarking in the round-about oriential manner, that it was a very good time, inteed, to turn the boat's head down stream. I dismissed him and thought over the situation carefully as I put all our weapons in good order, especially Jones's, who had left his arms in a most unfit shape. I never believed it before that time, but I believe firmly now in that old Latin epigram that 'Whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad.' gods wish to destroy they first make mad.'
This, understand me, referes to Jones. I then Suddenly I emerged on an open space in the middle of which was a dark, slimy, shallow pond. At the further end of this a herd of buffalo was contentedly lying and standing in the miry water.

"Hardly had I time to take in my surroundings when with a whore and a vall I saw my "Hardly had I time to take in my surroundings when with a whoop and a yell I saw my crew dashing towards me with wild, shrill yells. That their attitude was hostile I could no longer doubt, and to intimidate them I sent a bullet singing close to their heads, but they seemed frantic, literally bloodthirsty, as I found afterwards, and came on without a stop. Then I knew I was in it for life or death and as is the case with most men under such pressure, my knew I was in it for life or death and as is the case with most men under such pressure, my nerves hardened and my muscles became like chain cables. I had sixteen shots, and there were about the same number of my enemies. I fired as rapidly as I could pull trigger, but what with the gloom and the huddled mass in which they ran, I had only dropped nine men when the rest were upon me like mad blood hounds. One went down under my clubbed rifle, another I disabled with a left-handed blow of my clenched fist, and I dodged another in time to save my neck and lose my another in time to save my neck and loose my ear, which the rascal's keen weapon shaved off as neatly as any physician in Bellevue could have done with a scalpel. My gun was wrested from me and I fought with my clubbed revolver until I received this wound in the feer which leid converged from the beard, he showed us the hideous cicatrice as it ran in an oblique line, nearly five inches long, down his face.

"With this," he resumed, "my eyes were so filled with blood that I doubt but it would have gone hard with me then and there had not a loud commanding voice cried out for the ruffians to stay their hands. At this the fighting immediately ceased, and the tension on my-nerves thus removed, I at once recled and fell from sheer weakness, and barely remember an order given in that strange voice in the darkness, and in an account which I recognized even then as that of an educated Chinaman—to bear me to the pagoda, where the other foreign dog was; and then I fainted.

"When I recovered my senses I was so astounded I could not speak. I lay in a room where there were lights and luxurious furniture, and which seemed filled with the pungent perfume of burning joss sticks. Prayers printed on paper of all colors were strewn upon the floor. I now knew at once what that 'glittering' now meant which I had seen from the deck of the sampan during the afternoon. I was in a temple on the summit of the noon. I was in a temple on the summit of the hill, and the sun shining on its tiles had

"I was almost choking with thirst when the door opposite me opened and in strode a number of shaven orientals, all gorgeously attired, and following them came the four surviving in my hands and throwing him to the ground I demanded of him why he had lied to me.

"The master will remove his foot. His slave will tell him all."

"Be quick, I cried, if you value your life, him to the master come with me and see for him to the master come with me and see for him to the master come with me and see for him to the master come with me and see for him to the him to the master come with me and see for him to the him to the master come with me and see for him to the him to the come in the sampan, to a sheet hastily out of tuny notebook and wrote to Chin Fun to put the bearer in irons, and leaving the ship in charge of Sam Hing, to have the two men aboard row him back to the landing place and await my arrival there. If Chin Fun failed me, I felt that my chances would be small indeed—but it was a risk I had to take. There was no help for it. I felt that we were in no end of a bad scrape and my only hope lay in the fidelity of those two men on the sampan. I sealed the note in an envelope and told the wretched creature that was writhing at my feet that he must take starticity, and by way of guarantee I informed him that I would keep my Winchester on him until he reached the sampan. He could not read, I knew, being of that low class of his countrymen who receive no schooling—but who are in the vast minority as nine men in every ten in China can read well, write beautifully and cipher to perfection; a fact that puts our civilization here in rather an awkward light.

"The man sullenly obeyed me and by way of hurrying him I shouted that I would fire if he were not on the sampan in five minutes. All this had taken but a few seconds of actual time—however long it may seem in description where the mount of the busges and reeds in the direction whence had proceeded that thrilling appeal for help.

"I dashed madly on. The darkness was gathering fast, and the air was heavy and damp with the moisture-laden breath of an approaching storm. Suddenly I pitched forward over some object in my patch. It was the carcas

An Unwarrantable Split.

The action of Clayton's and Cobb's delegates to the senatorial convention, in withdrawing and nominating a candidate for senator in open violence to the rules governing not only the deliberations of such conventions, but the course of democratic organization, should not receive the approval of the democrats of the district.

Let us briefly review the situation: Clayton was entitled to two votes in the convention, Cobb four and Fulton

There were two candidates for the senatorial nomination: Messrs. Venable, of Fulton, and Todd, of Clayton.

From both Clayton and Fulton counties there were contesting delegations. In Clayton, Mr. Todd had carried the regular primary without opposition, but an unauthorized mass meeting had chosen another delegation. In Fulton, six delegates to the senatorial convention were chosen in July last, at a mass meeting called "to select delegates to the state democratic convention, and to choose a new county executive committee." The call was plain and unmistakable, and when the point was raised that the mass meeting had exceeded its authority in selecting delegates to the senatorial convention, four of the six delegates thus selected promptly requested the democratic executive committee to remove any doubt as to the title of Fulton's delegates to a seat in the convention, by submitting the matter to a primary election. These delegates were unwilling to serve with their title questioned, and when it appeared that the mass meeting which chose them had been called spe cifically for another purpose, they asked to have the matter settled by a primary election at which everybody would have a full and free opportunity to vote.

A primary was accordingly fixed for the 19th of August, and, after a month's notice, delegates favoring Hon. W. H. Venable were elected with practically no opposition. It was a full, fair and free primary, and voiced the sentiment of the county.

But Mr. Taliaferro, one of the six mass meeting delegates, refused to yield, claiming that he had been duly chosen, and that the executive committee had no right to order a primary after the mass meeting had acted. He held that the authority of the mass meeting was absolute, and that the purposes for which it was called did not restrict its action.

The senatorial convention assembled and the first step of the chairman was to call for the credentials.

Clayton responded with two sets of delegates-one favoring Mr. Todd, having the credentials of the democratic executive committee of the county, and the other the certificate of the chairman of the mass meeting by which they were

There was no question about the cre dentials of Cobb's four delegates. .

Fulton presented the credentials of the six delegates chosen by the primary, duly signed by the officers of the democratic executive committee.

Mr. Taliaferro demanded the right to cast Fulton's vote, but when asked for his credentials responded that he had none. The chairman of the mass-meeting had refused to give him credentials, in the face of the primary.

The chairman of the convention very properly ruled that only those bearing the duly authorized credentials of the party organization could participate in the temporary organization of the conven-

After 1613 ballots for temporary chair man, the vote being six and six, Clayton and Cobb withdrew, declared Mr. Taliaferro entitled to vote for Fulton, and by his vote nominated Mr. Todd. The regular convention, after protesting against the bolt and urging the delegates to return, then declared for Mr. Venable.

As matters now stand there is no doubt about Mr. Venable's having the prestige of party organization behind his race, and if the bolting delegates insist in their unwise and unwarrantable action it will insure Mr. Venable's election by an overwhelming majority.

The right thing for them to do is to reconsider their hasty action and proceed in regular order with the work of the convention. For the sake of harmony this opportunity has been given them. They should not persist in their folly, but should return to their trust.

It may be that further balloting would be fruitless; that on every question a tie would occur, and that the convention would sit until the regular election. So be itthen neither side could be charged with disorganizing the party and both candieither of them bolting the party to

THE CONSTITUTION'S sole interest in the matter is the interest of the party. It is not a question of Venable or Todd, but of party organization, which must be maintained.

It must be remembered that for 1613 ballots the Cobb and Clayton delegates participated in the attempt to organize the convention, after having duly presented their credentials. After temporary organization had been effected Mr. Taliaferro's claims would have been in order, for investigation and discussion, but not until then.

The bolting delegates virtually admit that their action is unwarranted, in having participated in the effort to organize, until, finding that they could not carry their point by regular methods, they left the convention and proceeded on an independent plan.

This will not do, nor will it be approved by the people.

He Will Be Missed. In the death of Dr. E. J. Roach, Atlanta loses one of her best citizens, the medical profession one of its brighest ornaments, and a sorrowing family one whose place can never be supplied.

When Dr. Roach left his Maryland home and settled in Atlanta, early in the 'fifties, he identified himself with the young city, and with rare public spirit devoted himself to her best interests. His merits were soon recognized. He was many times called to municipal offices, and served a term in the legislature. His eighteen years' service as a member of the board of education greatly advanced our public schools, and his record in this cause will not soon be forgotten. He made a reputation in the war as a regimental, brigade and division surgeon, and also by his efficient hospital management. The death of such a man in his prime comes upon the community with a shock. As a citizen, as a physician, and as a Christian gentleman whose love for his family and friends, and good will towards his felowmen made the world better and brighter. he will be sincerely mourned and gratefully remembered.

The heartfelt sympathy of the community will be with the bereaved family and the sorrowing friends in their hour of affliction.

Different Views of Maine.

Some of our democratic contemporaries regard the recent Maine campaign from different points of view.

The Cincinnati Enquirer believes that the election is full of significance. It holds that the result proves Mr. Blaine to be still the master mind in his party, and vindicates the wisdom of his policy in opposing the McKinley tariff and the force bill. Speaker Reed only benefits incidentally by the situation. The increased republican vote is not a tribute to him, but to another-to the amended policy of the party. The Enquirer predicts that Mr. Blaine will dictate the platform and the nominations in 1892. On the other hand, the St. Louis Republic says that the Maine election is a repudiation of the policy proposed by moderate republicans, and a thorough going endorsement of the most extreme radicals. Boodle played an active part in the campaign, and the republican plutocrats will adopt the same methods in the November states.

It is a mistake to exaggerate the importance of the result in Maine. The democrats in that state felt from the start that they had hardly a fighting chance. They anticipated defeat, and worked without hope. The republicans concentrated their boodle and energy upon this election. They did not repudiate Mr. Blaine nor Speaker Reed. They swallowed the inconsistent policies of their two leaders, pocketed the money shoved at them, and rolled up a big majority.

If there is any significance in the business it is that the republicans propose to rely upon boodle and bulldozing whenever there is anything to be gained by such methods.

A Great New Englander.

In a recent book published about Emerson by an amateur reporter, the New England sage and lover of pie is quoted as making some derogatory remarks concerning the character of Daniel Webster. According to the amateur reporter, Mr. Emerson regarded Webster as a very earthly being, a very coarse creature, with his feet in the clay-a man who would not hitch his wagon to a sky rocket, much less to a shooting star.

The report of Mr. Emerson's remarks calls out Mr. George Ticknor Curtis, the biographer of Webster, who seems to be perfectly willing to lay rude hands on the New England literary idol. Mr. Curtis remarks that Daniel Webster was all cleanness and simplicity in writing, speaking, thinking and reasoning, on account of which the transcendentalism of Emerson was as far removed from his own comprehension as any writings or sayings could be.

There is nothing more curious or more provincial than the attitude of a certain New England school toward Daniel Web. ster. It is the attitude of a few narrowminded abolitionists toward a great Amer ican who gave a new interpretation to th republic, and a new and lasting impulse to that union sentiment which is beyond and above sectionalism, and as broad as the country itself. And it is not so curious after all, for there could be nothing in com mon between the man who was for the union first, last and all the time, and those who were ready to sacrifice the union to an argument. The attitude of the abolitionists toward Daniel Webster has a parallel, to some extent, in their conception of the char acter of Abraham Lincoln, We are of the opinion, however, that Judge Curtis takes the matter too seriously Mr. Emerson was altogether too much in the air to entertain any great prejudice against Webster, and it is unfair to both to treat as authoritative a skim-milk report of Emerson's remarks. What the New England sage said of the New England states man is not at all important, nut whatever criticism he did make must have been put more concisely and aptly than that which is credited to him by the later Boswell, whose name we have forgotten. But the fact that the greatest and most powerful statesman New England has ever produced—the man whose eloquence and in-dividuality made a living essence of the dividuality made a living e dates could go before the people without | mion sentiment, and who hewed out the platform on which Lincoln stood-the fact is written from Alabama it is not in the inthat such a man should have to be defended by another New Englander is interesting enough to make a note of.

Inefficient Management. The Richmond and Danville road is one of the best lines in the south, but it is badly managed. The trouble is that the general manage is too far away from the road. It is a pity to see such a valuable property as this getting into such a condition. It is a road of very large earning capacity, yet the expenses keep close up with the earnings. It is not as popular as it ought to be, because those who live along the line do not know to whom to appeal for information or re-

If you ask one of its officers his name he has to refer the question first to Richmond, then it is referred to Washington, and finally to New York, and he may let you know, or not, in a week or ten days.

The road needs seriously a conveniently located officer, well posted in railroad management, with full power to act. He ought to be where he can learn and see what is going on, where he can talk to the patrons of the road, take complaints, make suggestions to division superintendents, and do a thousand and one things daily that are now left undone.

The road has competent men. Colonel Berkeley would fill the bill if his powers were enlarged, and if he was told to put the whole line in the same fix his division is now in, there would be no such foolishness as is now carried on in North Carolina and on the Georgia Pacific. Mr. Berkeley and Mr. Mcclesky have shown what they cando in their excellent management of this end. What the Richmond and Danville needs is a general manager on the line, with power to fix the roadbed, and trestles, and bridges, so they will hold the large engines and heavy cars, and long trains of freight, and who will have the nerve and judgment to weed out the incompetent and careless men and officers along the line, and put in their place first-class railroad men, whose chief pride will be to improve and build up the system.

The sooner this warning is heeded, the sooner will there be some showing for the stockholders.

The Ostrich Act.

The republican attitude toward the Quay Kennedy business is peculiar, to say the The Globe-Democrat is a very fair, and a very respectable republican paper, and manages to hit the sentiments of the average western republicans. It is opposed to the force bill and in favor of reciprocity, but on all other questions is generally orthodox. Commenting on the recent sensational episode in the house, it says that "if the presiding officer of the house, Mr. Burrows, had called Mr. Kennedy to order at the beginning of his offensive speech, he would have prevented the worst scandal of the session. This is about the extent of the Globe-Democrat's comments on the Kennedy business, and it chimes in admirably well with the tremendous attempts that are now on foot in the house of representatives to keep Kennedy's speech out of the Record.

What is the scandal from the republican point of view? Not that Quay absolutely refuses to notice these charges against his character-not that the leader of the republican party dare not deny that he is, as Kennedy says, a "branded felon"-but that the matter should have been alluded to in the house, or, having been alluded to, that the allusions should appear in the Record.

This is the celebrated ostrich performance on a very much larger scale than it has ever before been attempted in this country. The charges made by Kennedy on the floor of the house, with the connivance of the presiding officer and the rest of the republicans, were stenographically reported, and have appeared in every newspaper in the country; but, according to the republican idea, if the Kennedy speech fails to appear in the Record is must follow, not only that the charges were never made on the floor of the house, but that Quay himself is an innocent man.

It should be observed that the situation is very charming one. The ostrich that runs its head into the sand, leaving its hinder parts exposed to the blue vaults of heaven, is nowhere by the side of the party that makes a pretense of morality.

A "Yankee" General's Testimony.

General J. W. Burke, a northern mar who fought the battles of the north during the late unpleasantness, is now a resident of Alabama, and is largely interested in the mining and manufacturing interests of that state. He is a gentleman who has had some experience in the south and is familiar with southern affairs. What he saw while marching through her borders with Sherman convinced him that the south had a future, and a bright one; and so, when Lee surrendered he came over and made his home here. General Burke now comes forward and roluntarily testifies that his highest hopes have been realized; and in the light of the general misrepresentation to which the south has been subjected by northern men who have not lived among us, nor taken the trouble to study the situation thoroughly, his testimony is valuable and will do som

The main strength of it consists in the fact that he speaks of the south as the finest field for investment in this country. "Who has lost any investment judiciously made in the south in the past five years?" he asks, and then goes on to show that the southern people are not only prospering themselves but that northern men who have settled among them are feeding on the fat of the land and growing up with the country. General Burke says:

This is a great fact in the condition of the south: The mortgages are all being paid off.
After paying debts this year the Alabama farmers will have $10,000,000 left for improvements and investment. A very pertinent inquiry comes in very properly right at this tim. Who has lost very properly right at this tim: Who has lost any investment judiciously made in the south in the past five years? Thousands of people have fairly coined money. Nowhere in the country have the results of investment been more prosperous. We are prepared to absorb profitably yet hundreds of millions of dollars. There are no idle hands here. There is a great scarcity of good labor. The south is bent towards material development of her great natural resources, and she is going to her great natural resources, and she is going to get there. Mark me! There are thousands of chances yet to make money here, but to those who have come early the day is at hand and many have have come early the may is at manu and many nave realized magnificently. Twelve years ago the writer and some friends purchased some coal lands for $2.50 per acre. They were offered $35 yer acre for them a few days ago. And so with iron lands, timber and farming lands—they have all increased in value enormous;. It will be observed that while this letter

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

THE CHARLESTON NEWS AND COURIER says that the republican party gets drunk and demoralized in off years, but gets on its feet again when president is to be elected.

An IRISH paper speaks of a touching incident at the banquet given in London recently to Mr Parnell: "For months The O'Gorman Mahon who was in political warfare when Mr. Gladstone was still at Christ church, and who looks down on the liberal leader as a victous young schoolboy had been sick almost unto death. Many of hi friends thought that they would never look again on the leonine face of the grand old swordsman, who had a word and a blow for every slanderer of Ireland in the long dead past. But to the surprise of everybody-just as dinner was about to be announced-that splendid and towering figure, dressed, not in the commonplace swallow-tail, but in a strange wooly tweed garment, with sleeves tucked up and the look of many years' wear-walked into the room. At once there burst out a murmer, then it rose to a cheer, and then man after man went up to cordially shake th grand old chieftain's hand. It was an historic moment."

The official vote published by the committee, as all can see, was for Colonel Power 458, and for Rev. A. G. Dempsey, 836. The vote thrown out was, for Colonel Power 598, and for Rev. Dempsey 223. Any person interested can make their own calculation. As to the right of the committee to throw out the two districts to-wit, Marietta and Cox's, I don't propose to argue through the columns of a newspaper. As the committee was composed of both Power and Dempsey supporters, both Power and Dempsey supporters, both Power and Dempsey supporters voted in favor and against the resolution. I see there are serious charges made against laig Shanty in the article referred to before and also on the streets. They were not brought before the committee. Gentlemen: I am the man that is troduced the resolution before the executive committee. troduced the resolution before the executive committee setting apart Saturday, August 30, 1890, to hold an election to nominate two men to represent this county in the next general seventhy. Said election was to be held in each precent, and one justice of the peace and two freeholders or three freeholders were to hold or manage said election, and that resolution passed. There was nothing in it compelling said managers to keep tally sheets in said election, and I can't see for my life where you had any right to throw said districts out. All we ask is fairness-under democratic usages. Now we claim the nomination, and as a democrat I ask you to think, and think what you have done. The democratic parts of Cobb county now stands divided equally, and I sak the question who did it? We stand as form, and there we expect to remain. Gentlemen, this letter is directed to the newly elected executive committee. There were men in said committee who wanted to do right, such as Crowley and Sherman, of Roswell, and McKinney, of Gritter district, who if he had been put out as a candidate to represent this county, there wouldn't have been a word said, nor no opposition. There was some of said cou mittee outside of those I have named, J. D. Fuller and others, that wanted to do right, but you went in there with malice at heart—with the majority on your side. No, sir, we expect to throw Power overboard, the worst thing that you could have done. Now I shall always respect Rube McKinney for what he tried and wanted you to do, but alas! if you could have seen those old standard bearers of the democratic party of Marietta district blush when Hen Hamby and George Owen came down and out of the committee room and said, we are thrown out, you could nearly see tears run down their cheeks, who have stood by the principles so long and now couces a few and say you are no longer a democrat, depart from me ye cursed I never knew you. Rogers, Bell County, Tex., September 6.—Editor Constitution: Like many other members of Texas yeomanry, am greatly rejoiced to find a friend in periodical ranks who willingly, faithfully and fearlessly responded to the necessities of the bone and sinew of governments and strength of nations, and after reading your editorial under the caption, "Uncle Sam as a Broker," I feel like adding another flower to the wreath of glery with which the yeomanry crowned you. I happen to know something of the author and supporters of the resolution before the congressional convention moninating Mr. Mills for re-election.

D. C. Giddings, Jr., the author, was born and reared, so to speak, in a national bank, and the resolution was endorsed and supported by a similar character of kinsfolk. Home Again.—Mr. G. H. Sheridan has returned to the city, after a four months' trip north and east. Mr. Sheridan says that he enjoyed himself immensely, but that he nover felt quite happy until he felt Atlanta dirt under his feet, and caught a whiff of the delightful breezes that are wafted hitherward from the north Georgia mountains.

CHILDREN AND TUBEROSES.—Last Sunday, just before the Marietta street mission Sabbath school adjourned, 150 sprigs of tuberoses were distributed amongst the scholars and teachers. They were presented by a lady that had visited the school some months before, and the delight of the children made as pleasing a scene as one could imaging. as pleasing a scene as one could imagine.

From these papers the docket of the court will be largely made up, and there is quite a number of cases returned. Return day for the federal courts has been fixed for the 15th instant. The grand jury will meet on the first Monday in October.

BOYS' DEFARTMENT Y. M. C. A.—An interesting meeting of this department will be held at the building of the Young Men's Christian Association this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mothers are urged to call the attention of their sons between the ages of twelve and eighteen to the delightful meetings held for boys exclusively. Interesting programmes have been arranged for the meetings, and all boys will be made to feel at home.

BACK FROM INDIANAPOLIS.—Mr. John F. Cargile and Acting Secretary A. W. Burnett, of the Young Men's Christian Association, at Macon, passed through this city yesterday on their way from the national missionary conference, which convened at Indianapolis, Ind., on the 3d instant, closing on the 9th. They report a good meeting, 125 or more delegates present. These represented more than half the states in the union and nearly every country in the world.

WHO MADE THE COTTON FIGURES ?- A day or two ago there was a querry as to who made the cotton figures that were exhibited at the last exposition. The inquiry was from the north, and coupled with it was the request that the name of the lady be given, so that she could be induced to make some figures of the tame sort for a northern exhibition.

The lady who did the work is Mrs. Fannie.

UNCLE BILLY BOWERS .- "That Augusta UNCLE BILLY BOWERS.—"That Augusta ensus muddle didn't amount to much," said Uncle Billy Bowers, supervisor of the second census district of Georgia, yesterday. "Those fellows down there raised a mighty howl about the work of the enumerators, and the department gave them another count, but it didn't show much change in the work after all. Every other division of the district except Athens, has been satisfied with the count; and all the figures have gone on to Washington. My district will vie with any other of the state in setting forth the prosperity and progress of the growing new south."

A SUCCESSFUL FRUIT GROWER .- The Marietta Journal has this to say of an old At-

Marietta Journal has the ball and boy:

Mr. J. D. Cunningham, of Griffin, Ga., has bought part of the Timothy Stephens farm on Catton road, near town, from Mr. W. R. Turner, paying $3,000 for the same. Mr. Cunningham will build a nice residence on the property and plant an extensive peach orchard. He has a large peach orchard near Griffin, and hopes by coming higher up to raise peaches two weeks later than at Griffin, and thus keep the market supplied with Griffin, and thus keep the market supplied with both early and late peaches.

Mr. Cunningham is one of the largest and most successful fruit farmers in the south. He is a son of Judge John D. Cunningham, and an old Atlanta boy.

ONE MAN'S VIEWS.—Mr. W. A. Osborne, in disussing recent interviews with bankers, says: "I make no claim as a financier, but I think the fact patent that there will be no financial crisis in the near future, for a few reasons, mainly: The effort being made by Secretary Windham to relieve the present pressure by going beyond his orders in purchasing silver, and his payment of one year's interest on 4 per cent bonds. The truth is, the republican party compose the bulk of the capitalists on Wall street and in the east. They know full well financial disaster within the next two years means utter defeat and route of the republican party in 1892. I don't think Atlanta has ever seen as prosperous a period as there will be in the next six months."

THE ELECTRIC CITY .- Editor Pleasant A. Stovall, of The Augusta Chronicle, was in the city yesterday attending the meeting of the university trustees. He says Augusta has thrown off the title, "Fountain City," and will henceforth be called the "Electric City" and Cherrican City."

"Why, it is dangerous—absolutely danger-"Why, it is dangerous—absolutely dangersus—for a fellow to cross. Broad street now," said Mr. Stovall, and went on to explain:
"There are so many electric cars humming along, the chances are that he seen in our progressive city now—everything is done by electricity since the coming of our Kansas City capitalists."

Mr. Stovall left on the Georgia train last night for the "Electric City."

THE SEASON WILL SOON OPEN.—The most noted bird hunter in North Georgia is Jim Gann. He began the business thirty years ago, when Atlanta was but a little bright spot in the midst of the forest, and he has kept it no ever since

"There are thousands of young birds coming on," he said yesterday, with a merry twinkle in his eye," and the season will open grandly, on the 1st of October. "How many have I killed on a straight? Well, that is hard to say. I have killed as many as 100 birds without a miss, but sixty to seventy on a dead stretch is a pretty good day's work. I have done that often. There are more birds this season than I ever saw before, and the prospect is glorious for the sporting season."

Mr. Gann lives at No. 73 Humphreys street, and has been a hunter all his life. Every portsman in Atlanta knows him, and he is regarded as an oracle in shooting circles.

WITH THE POLITICIANS.

Governor Fowle is of the opinion that Zeb Vance will have no trouble in being re-elected to the United States senate, and doesn't hesitate to say so.

"His chances? Why, he will have every chance," was his reply to a question I asked him before the direct trade convention was called to order the other day. "I don't think he will have any opposition. At least that is the outlook now. There is, of course, no telling what will develop in politics, but right now everything seems to indicate that Zeb Vance will continue to represent the Old North State in the United States senate."

"Are they going to get you into it? I am told that you are a very decided probability."

To this feeler the gentleman from the Land of Flowers replied somewhat evasively.
"Well," he said, "I have heard some talk of that kind. That is a matter about which I have not made up my own mind. The newspapers know more about it than I do."

But the governor is a possibility—yes, a probability. Colonel Chipley's fight upon Senator Call, has stirred up no little opposition to the Jacksonville gentleman, who is now clothed with senatorial dignity. It has been charged that Colonel Chipley is himself an aspirant for the seat now held by Senator Call, but this the colonel denies. A Floridian who keeps posted, tells me that the opposition to Call may unite on Governor Fleming, who is, besides, very strong in himself.

It looks very much as if Florida would have lively senatorial fight, for Senator

Call has gone in to win. A prominent Macon gentleman who is a warm personal friend of Hon. R. W. Patterson explained to me yesterday the causes which led to Mr. Patterson's defeat in the Bibb primaries. He said: "Mr. Patterson's defeat in the primary was a surprise and a disappoint-ment. The betting was two to one that he would lead the ticket. No one seemed to have any idea that he would be defeated except himself, though he tried his best to impress his friends with the danger which he thought he was in. He could not do it, and really he did not anticipate that he was in as great danger as circumstances proved that he was. If there hed been any idea among his friends that there was a possibility of his being defeated he would have been overwhelmingly nominated. It happened as nearly as I can figure it out, this way: The question of the annexation of the suburbs, which have a population of about 10,000, played a very considerable figure in the election. Mr. Huff, who resides in the suburbs, was opposed to annexation. Patterson took the position that he was opposed to the annexation of the suburbs under our present charter, but that under a new charter he thought they should be an-nexed. He was forced by the action of his friends to take some position on this matter, and, of course, he could only take that which he thought was right. Novithefanding this he thought was right. Notwithstanding this, however, he would have been elected but for the fact that some of his warmest friends, who are anxious to beat Mr. Huff, against his protest, insisted on bringing Mr. Boifeuillet and Mr. Baxter, both residents of the city, into the race, and then formed a Young Men's Demorace, and then formed a Young Men's Democratic League with the avowed purpose of endorsing Baxter, Boifeuillet and Patterson, the latter of whom was placed in the unpleasant position of being the leading spirit in a combination against Mr. Huff, to which he always was strenuously opposed. Even then, however, he could have been easily elected, if he only could have gotten his friends to realize that he was in any danger. His special friends voted for Baxter, Boifeuillet and him, and Huff's friends in the city voted for Huff, Baxter and Boifeuillet. There is a very bitter minority in the city opposed to the present city administhe city opposed to the present city adminis-tration, and this scratched him because of his Intimacy with Mayor Price. Price is strong in in the city and has a majority with him, but there is a very large and very bitter minority." Colonel J. P. Austin, president of the Fulton County Alliance, has, so an allianceman tells me, sent a petition to ex-Senator Norwood, asking him to take the stump for Colonel Everett in the seventh. In this connection, Governor Gordon's offer to prominent alliancemen to take the stump in the interests of the candidates of the seventh and ninth districts is recalled. If General Gordon and districts is recalled. If General Gordon and Mr. Norwood should go into the seventh, wouldn't things be lively up there?

Several members of the Young Men's Democratic League have talked of inviting the governor and Mr. Norwood to a discussion of the issues of the day, that discussion to take place here in Atlanta.

"It wouldn't be a joint debate at all," explained one of the young men who have thought favorably of the project. "We wouldn't aim at anything of that sort. But they are both prominent democrats, and as such I think would respond favorably to our invitation. However, no formal steps looking to such a meeting have been taken, and they to such a meeting have been taken, and they may not be."

Hon. H. B. Lanier, of Early, who was a member of the legislature of 1886 and 1887, and who is the nominee for senator in the ninth district, was in the city yesterday.

Colonel J. F. Tillman, of Tennessee, who represented the governor of that state at the direct trade convention, is a prominent allianceman, and yesterday spent a portion of his time at the Alliance exchange.

"I am glad to know of Tillman's election in South Carolina," he said, when told of the result of the convention there. "No, I am not a South Carolina Tillman, but the name's a winner this year and no mistake."

South Carolina Tillman, but the name's a winner this year and no mistake."

Colonel Tillman is a handsome fellow, and while he didn't do much talking he made his presence felt. He is a member of the executive board of the national alliance and national crop statician of the governor for the order. He is an enthusiastic allianceman and those who know regard him as a probability for higher honors in the alliance.

Hon. G. W. M. Tatum, of Dade, a valuable member of the last house and a candidate for re-election, is a guest of the Markham.

An interested looker-on at the direct trade convention was Hon. Joe Terrell, who figures in the liveliest senatorial race in the state—that is the liveliest with the possible exception of the one that has just developed in this dis-of the one that has just derection.

"Well, I don't know that there is anything to say that hasn's already been said," he answered when I asked him about the status of affairs between him and the redoubtable Snelson. "I think there is no doubt of my election. My friends, at least, are confident."

Then he went down to look at the state of the crops with "his uncle" Bob Hardeman.

Incre are more birds this season than I ever saw before, and the prospect is glorious for the sporting season."

Mr. Gann lives at No. 73 Humphreys street, and has been a hunter all his life. Every sportsman in Atlanta knows him, and he is regarded as an oracle in shooting circles.

Found Work at Once.—About eight days ago the editor of The Constitution received a letter from Mr. John P. Meriwether, of Washington Courthouse, O., stating that he was a good carpenter, and asking if he could secure employment in his trade in Atlanta, as he was anxious to come south. A reply was at once sent him, stating that there was more work on hand in Atlanta than there were carpenters to do it, and that if he was a competent workman he would find no trouble in securing prompt employment. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Meriwether called at The Constitution office, and showing the letter that he had received, said:

"You see I followed your advice, and am here. I reached Atlanta this morning, and began to look about for work. In less than two hours after I got here I secured a splendid position with the showi case company, and have already begun my duties. I have not seen much of Atlanta, but from what I have seen I am mighty glad that I

A WEARISOME CASE.

STILL BEING ARGUED. the Most Complicated Cases Ever Tried in the State Courts of Fulton County Still Pending.

Bernheim Bros. & Uri against Wyly &

And a most wearisome suit it is.

Today will be the seventh day of the trial.

Will it be the conclusion? God and the petit jury only know. More than a year ago Wyly & Greene failed

They had placed a mortgage with the Lowry Banking Company, as they claim, prior to the failure, covering a large amount of their indebtedness. The mortgage was filed and recorded in November, 1887, and was renewed from month to month for seventeen months. At the time of the failure, some of the creditors claim that the mortgage was re-

JUST ONE HOUR before the other creditors had a chance to file their petition. The Lowry Banking Company claims that the firm of Wyly & Greene owed the bank about $27,000 at the time of the failure. After the fallure, when about $8,000 of that sum had been paid, the assets of the firm were given to the receiver, and it was found that the bank was still out $19,000, of which $1,900 was attorney's fees, But there were $13,000 still in the bank, and

But there were $13,000 still in the bank, and the other creditors became impatient.

THE FIRST PETITION, in behalf of the other creditors, was filed by Abbott & Smith, representing Bernheim Bros. & Uri, on April 5, 1889, one hour after the Lowry mortgage was recorded.

Afterwards, W. R. Brown, Hammond & Hammond and Hopkins & Son joined in an attack on the validity of the mortgage.

This brought about the suit, which is now pending.

How they stand.

The case has been on trial for six days, and will probably go to the jury today.

The matter stands thus:
Bernheim Bros. & Uri vs. Wyly & Greene.
Abbott & Smith represent the plaintiffs in the first case, with W. R. Brown, Hammond & Hammond and Hopkins & Son on the amended petition.

Jackson & Jackson represent Wyly & Greene.

Greene.

Candler, Thompson & Candler and Julius Brown represent the Lowry Banking Company, which is, in one sense of the word, a defendant, because this corporation is interested in sustaining the validity of the mortgage.

PAUL JONES'S CLAIM.

To add to the complications of the case, Paul Jones, of Louisville, claims that the goods that he sold Wyly & Greene were delivered on the written statement of the firm that their credit was good.

their credit was good.

Therefore, Paul Jones claims that the title to the goods never passed from his firm, and he now comes in for their recovery.

So the case stands. The argument will close today and this remarkable case will go to the jury, which will endeavor to decide on the equity and justice of the complicated matter SOCIETY GOSSIP.

A SMALL FLOOD.

The Water Gets Loose in the Chamberlin, Johnson & Company Building. There was a little flood around at Chamberlin, Johnson & Co.'s yesterday.

Water flowing down from above in a copious tream alongside the walls served as a warning to the clerks that serious damage might soon result if the goods were not moved away.

The clerks went to work clearing the goods from the shelves and placing them where the water could not reach them.

Upon investigation the stream was found to flow from the nozzle of the tank in the office of Mr. W. T. Downing, architect, on the third story.

The pipe had been left open and the stream was flowing freely, drenching the rooms and walls below.

The book store in the second story seemed to have received the severest damage, the injuries being estimated at from $300 to $400.

of September, for the Registration of Voters in the Elections This Year.

Have you registered? Perhaps you have, Perhaps you have not.

All are not registered who have paid their state and county taxes.

On the other hand, there are a lot of good democrats who have not paid their taxes, and who are not entitled to vote. This applies to the primaries, as well as the general election. THE RICE BILL provides that each and every taxpayer, who desires to cast his vote in any of the state or county elections, must first be registered. He must pay his taxes for the current year before he can register.

The act further provides that he must register his name on a book kept by the tax collector for that sole purpose.

In case a man fails to do this, he is not en titled to vote in Fulton county.

Every man who has paid his taxes directly to the tax collector for the year 1890, with no back taxes hanging over him, is entitled to tion of Fulton county.

There are from 12,000 to 15,000 voters in the county—that is, persons who are entitled to vote on complying with the law.

Many of these have already paid their taxes, but have not registered, so that they will be prohibited from voting in the fall elections, inless they come up to the scratch. The registration will close on Monday, September 15th, for the present year, and all who do not register before or by that time will

With a Prospect of Going Right on Savannah Americus to Jacksonville

The South Bound.

There was filed in the office of the secreta of state yesterday, to be recorded, the resolutions adopted recently by the directors of the on and Dublin.

The name is changed to the Macon, Dublin and Savannah. The road is to be extended from Dublin, in Tattnal county, by the most feasible and direct line, through the counties of Laurens, Montgomery, Emanuel, Bulloch, Tattnal, Bryan and Chatham to or near Savannah.

The work of extension will be pushed rap-

Americus to Jacksonville. A road is projected to run from Americus

The Americus Times says:
Those who are interested have let no grass grow under their feet, and have about got things in shape for the accomplishment of their pet scheme. Negotiations are now pending with a corps of civil engineers which, if secured, is to make a survey of the proposed route and report as soon possible. The projectors of the road have taken a map, placed a rule on it and marked a straight line from Americus to Jacksonville. Instructions will be issued to the engineers to follow that line just as near as it is possible. An application will be made to the next general assembly for a charter for the road. The Americus Times says:

At a meeting of the Savannah Construction Company, held a few days ago, reports were presented by Chief Engineer Wadley and General Manager Brown. Mr. Wadley reported that two preliminary lines had been run to Columbia and one to Barnwell, and that the engineering corps is now on the line from Blackville to Columbia. All the preliminary lines will be completed this The 100 tons of steel rails recently received will be shipped to the right of way this week, and track-laying commenced at the Central railroad crossing. The two locomo-tives to be used in the work of construction will reach here about September 20th, and the cars for that service will arrive on October 1st. Two new locomotives for the regular business of the company have been ordered from the Raldwin Locomotive Works.

The board instructed the chief engineer to survey the route from the Central railroad crossing to the company's depot grounds in the city. General Manager Brown made a report in regard to the action of the authorities of the city of Columbia giving rights of way. He also reported that the people of Allendale had increased their subccriptions to $8,000, provided the railroad made that place one of its stations. The entire business of the construction company is progressing very satisfectorily and the work of building the South Bound i being pushed with the greatest energy.

On last Friday there was a very serious accident on the Danville division, at the Yadkin river bridge. But few people knew the extent of it. It is rumored that thirty-six freight cars are scattered in and along the Yadkin river where the main line of the Richmond and Danville crosses, and that the bridge and trestle are down, and that it will take two weeks to get it so it will be safe for another train to pass

The present route around through North Carolina is ruinous to the railroad. The trains are from fifteen to eighteen hours behind time, there is no provision to feed passengers, and very little attention is paid to their wants prcomforts between Danville and Charlotte.

The passengers that arrived here yesterday were hung up two hours at Sanford, and three irs at Hamlet, and a more disgusted and a bitter-humored crowd never were thrown together. They were disgusted at the want of accommodation on the part of the railroad and the want of information on the part of the con-ductor. Several of the passengers are well sat-isfied he did not know his own name. They nearly lost their patience when they found him at Hamlet at the hotel eating his dinner, when he would not tell them whether they would have time to eat or not, and had to depend entirely on the ambiguous lunch wrapped in a dirty paper to satisfy their hunger. There was no water in some of the cars for hours, and lazy train hands were waiting for orders for There was no ice during the whole day and no effort to get any.

The feeling of the passengers was very bitter against the line, and men from Mississippi, Texas and Alabama said they would let their people know of the treatment they received. Eighteen Hours Behind.

The train on the Air-Line yesterday was eighteen hours behind time. It should have arrived at 9:40 o'clock Wednesday night and came in about 2 o'clock yesterday. It came to Charlotte fourteen hours behind time, and, after leaving, ran into a land slide near the after leaving, ran into a land slide near the 107-mile post; the engine was badly injured, and also the mail car. All the cars in the train were more or less injured, but could be used. As soon as the conductor ascertained the damage he started a train hand on a run to Westminster, four miles east of where the accident occurred. There he found a freight engine, and returned. In three hours the conductor had his train cleared, the mail transferred and was on his way to Atlants. He also kindly telegraphed for arrangements to feed his passengers, and at Lula ample lunch was on hand for the hungry passengers.

It belongs to a lady who reached Atlanta Wednesday evening on the Western and Atlantic train, but what her name is is not positively known. It is thought, however, that she is a Mrs. Harvey, of Raleigh, N. C.

The money was lost in the passenger coach by the lady, and picked up by Charles Davis, another passenger. Captain Thompson recovered the money yesterday morning, and now holds is subject to the owner's call.

Wednesday evening the lady dropped her pocketbook containing her trunk check and railroad ticket to Raleigh in the car, as she was getting off in the union depot. She discovered the loss in a few moments and ran back to the car.

In company with Captain Thompson he went to the platform in the rear of the hotel and took from beneath it part of the money. He had hid it there the night before. The balance he had given to his wife, who turned

The lady who had the money had in the meantime left on the early train for Raleigh. Captain Thompson telegraphed ahead to the conductors of the trains she would likely take, but so far no answer has been received. Davis was released without prosecution, and he and his wife left the city yesterday.

White were also present, representing the faculty of the university.

The purpose of the meeting was to arrive at such ways and means as will lead to a larger scope generally of the university, and especially to enlarge the facilities of agricultural training at the college.

This department of the college has been seriously neglected for many years by the state, and the trustees have been concerned as to what should be done with it.

The meeting last night was chiefly consumed in discussions. No plans were formulated as to the achievement of a wider field for training in the department of practical agriculture.

The committee will report to the next meeting of the board of trustees, which has been called to meet in Atlanta on the third Thursday in October.

The main object of the meeting was thus deterred until the trustees meet again.

PARAGRAPHIC PENCILINGS.

Bellamy's "Looking Backward" is a charming speculation, but as he himself confesses is largely fanciful. In so far as it has any scientific basis it is borrowed from Herbe Spencer, but the latter author would repudiate the quick work that Bellamy makes out of his theory of social evolutions. As The Boston Transcript said in one of the earlier critisisms of the book: "The time allowed for his marvelous industrial and social transforma tion is too short by a millennium."

His attempt by historical references to strenghten his position is exceedingly fattle, not to say foolish. His instance of the French revolution is in point. In its last analysis the reign of terror was a bread riot-the free circulation of grain was one of the popular demands and Necker's issue of assig-nats was intended to relieve the pressure on the masses. Nearly 100 years have passed by, and yet the Fr peasant is as sorely pressed for substantial food as the Scotch crofter or the Irish tenant.

So of Italian unification. This political aspiration antedates the crusades and was the favorite fancy of Savona rola and Rienzi, before Lutherar eformation. Whether the empire that Victo Emanuel established will survive for another half score of years is a difficult problem.

Just as the great geological movements are secular and not cataclysmic, so the social changes that Bellamy predicts will be slow in their de velopment. The coral insect of the south sear builds continents and islands by the "minutes accretions of persevering labor," and there is no short cut or royal road from savagery to an

It follows inevitably that before the Utopia which he depicts can possibly materialize there must not only be the downfall of dynas ties, but the death of races. Any conceivable world-wide civilization must be preceded by the extinction of the millions of China, of a lesser number of misshapen African and nomadic Indian tribes. The law of the survival of the fittest must needs have centuries for its work of elimination. The Great Teacher asked: "Can a mar gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles?" As readily might this be done as by any trick of legislation to evolve a high civilization in the nidst of a horde of Calmuck Tartars or amongst the negroes of Dahomey, who wor ship God in the form of a serpent.

ship God in the form of a serpent.

Let us not be charged with pessimism because we refuse to accept the optimistic fancies of Bellamy and kindred writers. We are not skeptical as to the upward trend of civilization amongst the Aryan races. But when we remember that it required 500 years to rid England of the rotten borough system of representation; that Germany, with her universities and common schools, is still wedded to medieval policies, we are far from believing that the twentieth century will wit-ness the dream of a political and social millennium on this western continent. And yet we do not see what special harm can come of reading Bellamy's "Looking Backward," if the reader will bear in mind that it is not the product of philanthropic statesman ship, but only a better specimen of that sense tional literature which floods the book market But for decency's sake, if from no higher mo-tive, don't dabble in such erratic stuff as Tol-stoi's "Kreutzer Sonata." We might strain a point to vote with Wanamaker for its exclusion from the mails, but this would only quadruple the sale. We all have somewhat of the perverseness of Mother Eve in hanker-ing after forbidden fruit.

In a talk with Wallace Reed, of THE CON-STITUTION STAIR, about Randolph of Roanoke, he told us a good one that we have never seen ne told us a good one that we have never seen in our miscellaneous reading.

Randolph was an honored guest at a select dinner party, and nearly opposite him sat the late Chief Justice Parsons, of Massachusetts, then a bright lad of sixteen summers.

In the run of the evening he said to young Parsons: "Mr. Parsons, are you a descendant of Parsons, the Jesuit?" The youth colored of Parsons, the Jesuit?" The youth colored to his eyebrows, and with a voice but slightly tremulous, responded in a clear tone: "Mr. Randolph, I am neither the descendant of a bigot nor of a savage." For once the great Virginian was floored, and amidst the ringing laughter of the other guests, in which he joined himself most heartily, he bowed gracefully to the brave lad, and henceforth took him into his confidence and into his circle of friends.

We are sorry to note in recent magazine literature the frequent juxtaposition of the names of Wendell Phillips and Daniel Webster. Beyond the fact that they were both natives of New England, they were utterly unlike morally, politically and intellectually. Phillips belonged to the same school of aboli-tionists with Gerritt Smith and William Lloyd Garrison. He despised the union and hatee the constitution, whilst Webster was the un faltering defender of one and the other.

Phillips had in his latter years quite a fanc for kicking the dead lion of Marshfield. One of the bitterest diatribes that ever fell from the lips of platform speaker was delivered by Phillips against Webster when his (Webster) clario voice was stilled in death. It was less reprehensible because he injected into his speech many compliments to the transability of the great statesman. Phillips was a first-class stump orator with bit of the bulldozing spirit of the present speaker of the house of representatives. Such combination of qualities is rare, but where i exists it is not easy to head off its fortuna possessor. Phillips at one time shut the door of Faneuil hall in the face of Webster, and Reed only the other day paralyzed the "plumed knight" by a largely increased congre

Now that our old friend. Judge Richard H

Clark, has settled the question as to the authorship of "Rosin the Beau," will some one else give us rest as to who killed Cock Robin? or the graver problem, who wrote the Junius let-ters? The last named question has never been satisfactorily answered. The Sir Philip Francis theory was thought to have adjudicated the fairly and finally, but every few years some new "Daniel comes to judgment, the decision is reversed, or at least a new trial granted. Why might not some advanced medium rap up the spirit of the de-parted clerk of the war depart-ment and get the desired informament and get the desired information? While on this subject of hard questions what will you do with the question of Jeptha's daughter? Did the old time Hebrew judge play the role of Virginius, and slay her out right, or was she doomed to perpetual vir ginity?-a fate to a Jewish maide death. And, thert, Samson's riddle, the solu tion of which was filched from him by harlot, and which, we understand, was th subject matter of a recent sermon in this city And then lastly, but not leastly, who is the senatorial nominee for this district!
Is it Venable or Todd? We suppose the ballot box must decide between Dr. Sewall and Colonel Bray. We might swell the list to thousands, such as who was Melchisedek? Who was the man who wor the iron mask? Who was Blennerhassett!

Was he truly, as Wirt alleged, a native of Ire land? Moreover, who struck Billy Patterson? There is evidently no lack of material for the village debating societies. At the same time our city literary clubs may tackle the query whether Bacon wrote Shakespeare, whether Robert Browning or Joaquin Miller is the greater poet? Meanwhile, the Atlanta Philosophic Society may define more clearly the distinction be-tween the "noumena" and the "phenomena" or grapple with the penderous question, whether the three-toed Hippus of the tertiary age was the veritable progenitor of Salvator, who broke the record a few days since at Monmouth park. Dr. Roach, when he first came to Atlanta, was young, sanguine and public-spirited, one of those men who are always welcome in a young and growing city.

In 1858 he was elected treasurer of the city council, a position which he held with honor and credit until he shouldered his knapsack and went forth to serve his country in another After the war he returned to Atlanta, and was elected city physician, for the entire city, in 1867, which position he filled for three That was before the city was laid off into wards, and the onerous duties of his office were all performed to the eminent satisfaction of the city government and the people at large.

In 1880 he was elected a member of the legislature, and Fulton county never had an honester or more faithful representative.
Previous to that time, in 1872, when the board of education was first organized, he was elected a member.

This position he held for eighteen years, and just prior to his death he was re-elected for a term of six years. He was recently elected vice president of the board, and these civic honors, heaped upon him, one after, another, give some idea of the confidence reposed in his ability and trustworthiness by the people of Atlanta, with whom he has been identified as an official and a citizen for so long a time.

An Interesting Meeting Yesterday After-There was a large number of ladies present at the meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union yesterday afternoon, in the stewards' room of Trinity church. Mrs. M. L. McLendon presided and conducted the devotional services.

The committee appointed to call upon the Ministers' Association for assistance in entertaining the delegates to the national convention, reported that they found the Baptist ministers in session last Monday, and were very courteously received by Dr. Hawthorne' who assured them that he would give his hearty co-operation in the way of securing homes for the delegates.

The committee on entertainment reported a large number of homes secured for the delegates.

The committee on finance presented a plan for securing funds to defray the expenses of the entertainment.

Rev. Dr. John W. Heidt described, in graphic terms, the meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union convention in New York, and infused renewed life into the audience by his hepeful description.

Letters were read from Miss Frances Willard and Mrs. W. C. Sibley, containing words of encouragement, that were gratefully received.

The address of Rev. T. P. Cleveland, at Payne's chapel last Sunday, delivered to the gospel temperance meeting, was reported, and contained many telling points.

Mrs. Saul, superintendent of the railroad work, reported that the railroad men were very kind and attentive at the noonday services held on Tuesdays and Fridays.

The gospel temperance meeting next Sunday afternoon will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Heldt, and among other iteresting topics he will give a glowing description of a meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

PHOSPHATE BEDS.

STATE GEOLOGIST SPENCER SUB-MITS HIS FIRST REPORT

After an Examination of the Beds in Thomas County—A High Quality of Fertilizer.

Some time ago Dr. Spencer, the state geologist, had his attention drawn to the phosphate deposits in Thomas county by Mr. John M. McCandless.

Mr. McCandless had made an analysis of the phosphate rock, showing 60 to 85 per cent of phosphate of lime. Dr. Spencer visited the bed, and yesterday made a report concerning them to the state geological board. This is the first report submitted since the department was re-established.

lished.

Dr. Spencer says:
In a letter from Mr. J. M. McCandless, dated July 25th, my attention was called to the occurrence of phosphates in southern Georgia, analysis of which showed a high quality. As those were probably the first phosphates of importance that have been found in Georgia, I deemed it advisable to make an examination at the first opportunity, in order to ascertain if the deposit justified investigation of the belt. Consequently I visited the region and now submit my first report, which absence, occasioned by other field work, has delayed.

The phosphate bed is best exposed about three delayed.

The phosphate bed is best exposed about three miles west of Boston, on the Thomasville road and westward, as shown on the accompanying sketch map. At only a few points is the deposit of phosphate seen on the surface; but a large number of pits have been opened by Mr. Dunwoody Jones. In these openings the phosphate is found beneath a cepth of 4 to 10 feet of earth, and again it appears to pass to even greater depths beneath the earthly covering. to 10 feet of earth, and again it appears to pass to even greater depths beneath the earthly covering. The mineral is in the form of nodules, varying in size up to masses of 100 pounds or more. The color is variable, ranging from white to yellow brown and green. The nodules often make up apparently 50 per cent or more of the bed, which sometimes reaches a thickness of over ten feet. In the bed with the mineral flinty probles convenience over the two mineral sinty probles conveniences. nodules commonly occur, and even the two minerals are commingled. The phosphates are underlaid by fints, and these rest upon limestone. The geological age of these underlying fints and limestones is lower miocene. This was determined by the fossils which I collected in the rocks, and referred to Dr. W. H. Dall, of Washington. The phosphates are newer and contain fragments of the older shells. In fact, both the flints and phosphates were once beds of limestone subseq converted into the secondary forms.

Thus it is found that the geological position of the phosphate beds of Thomas county is the same as that of some of the Florida deposits.

as that of some of the Florida deposits.

The phosphate beds are lenticular or lie more or less in pockets, some of which are of large size. Besides those deposits seen, the mineral is said to occur along the Ancilla creek and at other places and at considerable depths.

I made several qualitative tests of the ore, but have depended for percentages upon Mr. McCandless' analysis of Mr. Jones's ramples. The reports show bone phosphate up to from 60 to 85 per cent. The percentage of clay is low, as is also the iron. This can be seen in the openings, as the iron coloration is limited, and the clay is upon the surface of the nodules and can be removed by washing, as in the case of the Charleston deposits. Water is near at hand.

The depths at which the phosphates can be profitably worked varies with the volume. The Charleston phosphates have usually a thickness of six to fifteen inches, although greater in places. Under these conditions they obtain from 300 to 1,200 tons to the acre, and can remove from eight to ten feet of earth, according to Dr. Shepard. Usually 500 tons to the acre are necessary to may the expenses. The heaviest Thomas sary to pay the expenses. The heaviest Thoma county deposits would reach three thousand tons to the acre, yet such a yield could not be expected to continue over large areas, but would help tide over the inevitable expense of the poor ground.

All ringh the deposit of Thomas county phosphate is confined in width, there seems no reason why it should be limited in length. The personal outlook is sufficient to justify further prospecting and further development of an industry so important to the state. I shall give this question of phosphates more attention at an early date as the preliminary investigation warrants it; in order to make known the modes of occurrence and gen-eral distribution to the land owners and others interested in the prospecting and development of

The petition in his behalf is a very strong one. It is signed by many people in Jasper county, where Roby has influential and wealthy relatives. The penitentiary authorities say that his behavior in the camp has been exemplary. The guards testify that since Roby has been wearing stripes he has developed many noble traits of character. Captain J. W. English supplements this with a letter saying that it is impossible for him to believe that a man like young Roby could have committed so helnous a crime.

They Should Be Avoided-A Few Points in Regard to Them.

When the Creator in His wrath (or for His glory?) saw fit to expel His first creation, His own image, from the garden of Eden, He placed on them the curse of disease and death. In after generations He visited His chosen people with many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all the many ills He inflicted upon his fallen creation once are more variety. many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all the many ills He inflicted-upon his fallen création mone are more painful, more loathsome, or more errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its ravages and dangerous to life, robbing one of all the pleasures of living. But, as in all other afflictions, He has given a remedy; science in its primitive state was unable to utilize the remedy without eausing most intense suffering, and oftentimes leaving the victim in a condition much worse than at first. It was left for the progressive physicians of the present age to offer you a pleasant cure for this most unpleasant disease. You need no longer fear the "knife," with all its pain and dangers, for its unnecessary. I have laid aside all harsh means and treat you by a rational treatment that when properly applied for a sufficient time will cure you. Have you fistula? If so, it is unnecessary to ask you if you wish to be cured of it. But do you wish to avoid the intense pain of a severe operation, or are you wedded to the old belief that you cannot be cured without the crude and painful means formerly employed? If you are, I have nothing to offer you. If you are not, I offer you the very latest that science can give you. I have cured many by this rational method, and I offer the same to you confidently, promising you satisfactory results. Many ladies are affected with fistula. To all I say, do not let your timidity prevent you from a valling yoursel of this opportunity to obtain a cure. My arrangement for privacy are all you could wish. Promising to verify all my claims. Cor. Decatur and Pryor Sts., opposite the Kimball. This is the first anniversary of the opening of The Dresden China Store in Atlanta. We are happy to say that we have suffered no disappointment and that the good people of the Piedmont section have stood by us. Our enterprise in giving Atlanta a first-class china store has been appreciated and our thanks are due to our friends and patrons whose continued good will is herewith solicited.

A large part of our new importation have arrived, amongst which is the largest assortment of dinner sets, tea sets and chamber sets ever shown We do not sell at original cost price, neither have we any odds to sell; our stock is new, no old shopkeepers to get rid of, but everything bright and fresh and our prices low enough to meet any competition.

Our stock of hold china is complete and persons in need of such goods will do well to inspect our stock and prices:

A RELIABLE REMEDY!

Said the father of his country. No better motto could possibly be selected upon which to build a character or a Clothing business. In this age of exaggaeration and bombstic claims of superiority exaggaeration and bombstic claims of superiority to the disparagements of others, it seems a little odd for an advertiser to follow the example of the aforesaid father. But this course pays in the long run. People are discriminating. Constantly customers are saying: "Well, you don't make as big claims as some people, but you have the largest and best stock in Atlanta, and prices the most reasonable." All I ask is a call. Seeing will convince you quicker than a whole page of advertising.

AGENTS,

4 Central Residence Lots 4

S. W. CORNER IVY AND HARRIS STS. AT AUCTION,

Monday, September 15, 4 P, M.

ON THE PREMISES.

Three of the lots are 25x100 feet-each and one is 27x100 feet, 8 foot alley in the rear of all. Each lot will be offered with the privilege of the adjoining lot at the same price, so that any one objecting to a 25-foot front lot, can bid with the posjecting to a 25-foot front lot, can bid with the pos-itive assurance of controlling 50 feet front at the same price per lot, should he wish to do so. The property is only five blocks from the Kimball house, and there is great demand for small resi-dence lots so centrally located. Very few are to be had, and those wishing one will find it to their interest to attend this sale. Belgian blocks side-walk, water, gas and sewerage are already in front of the property and paid for, and the purchaser at this sale will never be called upon for a cent for street improvements. There is no section of the city where property rents better than right here, and you could make no better investment in At-lanta rent-paying property than to buy the four and you could make no better investment in Atlanta rent-paying property than to buy the four lots and erect thereon a duplicate of the blocks of either Mr. Robert Winship or John M. Hill, just this side of the property. Central vacant property is scarce, and is the best, safest and surest property you can put your money in. These lots are just one block from the Peachtree car line and the same distance from the Courtland street electric car line. Eyery lot offered will be sold to the highest bidder. Call and get a plat. Sale begins promptly at 4 o'clock. Be there on time. Terms cash.

TO THOSE SEEKING AN INVESTMENT IN SUBURBAN PROPERTY.

SUBURBAN PROPERTY.

We wish to call your attention to an investment in a large tract of land on Howell's Mill road, which is offered at a low price for a few days only. It is right in the line of the many improvements already made and to be made between Atlanta and the river. It has a beautiful front of 3,000 feet on the road and lies well. Is just the right distance from the city at which to buy to get the best profit. Howell's Mill road has recently been changed from one of the roughest to the best road in Fulton county. Heavy cuts and fills have been made and the road splendidly paved. No objectionable features or surroundings. You can take it together, The price is far below what you can buy any other tract equally well situated, and the property is an unusually attractive one. It will pay you to call and get full particulars and inspect it. There is money to be made by acting promptly.

SAM'L W. GOODE & CO.

$1.250 is what the choice Forest avenue lot, 50x150, can be bought. It lies well, is in a splendid neighborhood that is already nicely built up with nice houses, has a ten-foot alley in the rear and is decidedly the best vacant lot on the north side for the money. Terms reasonable.

Governor Fowle spent yesterday driving over the city and viewing the many evidences of progress and enterprise that never fail to stamp an indelible impression on the minds of visitors and strangers that come to Atlants.
While here the governors were called upon by Mayor John T. Glenn, Mr. Ridley and Dr. Wilson, the committee from the exposition company to invite them to visit Atlanta again during the progress of the exposition.

THE GREAT MINSTREIS.

Cleveland's Merry Makers Greeted by a Large Audience-A Fine Show. Billy Cleveland's Magnificent Minstrels opened at DeGive's last night to a thousand-dollar house. And the audience was one of the most refined and cultured that Atlanta ever turns out.

Every box was occupied.

The parquet and dress circle chairs were all

Both galleries were full. And every one in the vast audience pronounced the show a splendid success. It was unlike any minstrel show ever seen in Atlants in stage setting and costumes. Then the familiar faces of many of the best artists in minstrelsy in the world were there. Billy Rice, W. P. Sweatman, Charlie Willis, John Mack and Banks Winter were given a hearty greeting by their old Atlanta friends. When the curtain was rung up the troup was ar-anged in the usual semi-circle surrounded by ranged in the usual semi-circle surrounded by walls of velvet drapery.

In the troup are some of the sweetest and best male voices Atlanta has had the pleasure of hearing in many days.

Banks Winter, an old Georgia boy, delighted his many friends with a magnificent rendition of "Love Me Only," a song written by himself. Since his last appearance in Atlanta Mr. Winter has made wonderful improvement. He was thrown several handsome becauses. J. H. Mack's banjo solo, "Home, Sweet Home,"

J. H. Mack's banjo solo, "Home, Sweet Home,' caught the house completely.
"It Looks Very Much That Way," sung by James Wall pleased every one.
W. P. Sweatman and Billy Rice took the audience by storm. Veteran Billy is just as funny and clever as he was years ago, and made every-body laugh. His eyes look just as white surrounded by hurnt cork as ever. "When Johnny Gets His Gun" was a song with which he brought down the house. Then in Mr. Sweatman's original sketch, "Oratory," he proved himself the silver-tongued orator of the stage.

Than Mr. Sweatman there is no finer burnt cork artist in the world. He is funny, original and de-artist in the world. He is funny, original and de-cidedly successful. Words that would fall flat from almost any one elsef are funny when Sweat-man says them. His Chinese song, "Little Ah Sid!" was great.

Sweatman and Rice make a team hard to beat.
The Lohengrin knights in their glittering costumes were fine and had a pleasing effect.
Howe and Wall introduced symphonies, sweet soles, which pleased all. They are indeed good.
Nunn Ronaldo and Gerard were good.
The entertainment closed with the finest troup of Jajanese ever seen in Atlanta. Their work was marvelous and held the audience entranced for

There will be a matinee this afternoon and the roup will close tonight.

"A Tin Soldier."

The funniest of all of Charley Hoyt's comedies "A Tin Soldier," will be the bill at DeGive's at Saturday matinee and nightlyperformances. This is undoubtedly one of the very best comedies of its kind ever written, and the kind is one that is bound to please everybody who comes in contact with it. This is the first comedy which Hoyt & Thomas have sent south under their one manage-with it. This is the first comedy which Hoyt & Thomas have sent south under their one mnanagement. They have in it a number of well-known comedians. Hoyt's people are as famous as his plays. This company opened in Charleston a few evenings since. Speaking of the performance, the News and Courier says:

The company, under the n anagement of Mr. Frank McKee, played "A Tin Soldier" for the first time before the public in Charleston last night, as it came here direct from New York. The performance was in general admirable, in the respect that it kept the andience in incessant laughter. That is the sole aim of the play, and as the object was fully realized, the presentation can be put down as a big hit and a big success. There were many specially good features, both in the acting and by-play. For instance, the professer of Mr. Presser, by the way, is the author of "The Letter That Never Came," and other popular songs. He is a first-class commedian.

The Rats of Mr. Dunn was another fine piece of work. In his character he is an ethnological puzzle. It is 1a d to place him, but he keeps himself always en rapport with the audience, and it applauded him very justly and generously.

A very captivating young thing is Miss Kitty Kursale, both as Patsy and as Kitty Kursale. She acts with spirit and is bright in expression and vivactous in manner, and besides is quite pretty. The three persons just mentioned are quite enough to make the play a "go," and it will go very well for this senson.

The audience was large and enthusiastic.

"A Tin Sold of" will undoubtedly prove one of the funniest things of the year.

Charles A. Gardenr in "Fatherland."

Charles A. Gardonr in "Fatherland."

Next Monday and Tuesday, at night and at a matinee, "Fatherland," a new, romantic and picturesque drama of Tyrotean life, will be given with the talented German dialect comedian and sweet singer, Charles A. Gardner, in the principal part. The play is the combined work of Sidney R. Ellis and Mr. Gardner, and is remarkably strong and effective. As Herman Leopold, a peasant of the Tyrol, who is a hunter and guide, the author-actor gives one of his happiest impersonations. He is a picturesque figure, and does superior acting in almost every scene in which he figures. He sings songs of the Tyrol in a way that leaves nothing to be desired. All the scenery is new and illustrates Tyrolean life with such characteristic gems as the "Festag," the "Spinstube" and a "Saengerfest." The company brings its own special scenery.

Do You Want to Escape.

Do You Want to Escape.

Do you want to escape chills and fever this season? No matter how much malaria is in the atmosphere and how many may be taken down in your neighborhood with malarial fevers, they could have escaped and you can escape by a use of that excellent remedy, Smith's Tonic Syrup, made by Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky. It cures chills and fever when quinine fails. It is far better than quinine, for it leaves no unpleasant after effects. Smith's Tonic Syrup is not an experiment, For many years it has been considered the only safe and certain cure for chills and fever. You do yourself great injustice if you fail to take this remedy, for it will cure you even when all other treatment fails.

Sir, do you realize the power of a tailor? He enhances or mars the elegance of a fine figure. The products of some would spoil the physical grace of a god.

THERE WAS NO QUORUM

AND WEDNESDAY'S JOURNAL RE-

The Speaker Cheered as He Takes His Seat He Tries to Proceed to Business, But the Democrats Check Him.

WASHINGTON, September 11.—As Specker 1 Reed entered the chamber this morning, at a few moments before noon, he received a round of applause from the republican side of the house and from spectators in the galleries. but no other demenstration was made.

After prayer, Mr. O'Ferrell, of Virginia, made the point of no quorum present. The speaker, without taking note of the point, stated that the question was on ordering the previous question approving the journal of Tuesday's proceedings and directed the clerk to call the roll.

On ordering the previous question the vote stood yeas 87, nays 44-no quorum-and on motion of Mr. McKinley (amidst democratic applause), the house at 12:35 adjourned. TO GO TO THE HOUSE. Putting the Finishing Touches to It-The Land Grant Forfeiture Report. WASHINGTON, September 11.-The enrolling clerks of the senate kept their work on the tariff bill well up with each day's preceedings of the senate, so that this morning the long bill was ready for final comparison, before being sent over to the house. The work of examining the bill for possible errors was completed shortly after noon, and during the day it will be signed by President Pro Tem. Ingalls and sent to the house. When it meets tomer-row morning, the bill, with senate amendments, will, under the rules of the house, be referred without special action to the committee on ways and means, as was done when the silver bill was referred to the coinage committee. A meeting of the ways and means committee will be called for the earliest date practicable, and called for the earliest date practicable, and unless some unexpected obstacle is encountered on part of the democratic members of the committee the bill will be reported back to the house, with the committee's recommendations, not later than Monday or Tuesday. The committee's recommendation, it is predicted, will be that the house agree to such of the senate amendments as are merely verbal and do not change the rates, and that as respects those amendments which do increase or reduce rates in the bill as sent to the senate, the house non-in the bill as sent to the senate, the house non concurs and agrees to the conference asked by the senate.

Meanwhile, although the bill is not yet in conference, the republican members of the committee are quietly examining the senate amendments with a view to expediting their lispesition in conference.

THE LAND GRANT FORFEITURE REPORT. The main proposition in the report is contained in the first section, as follows:

That there is hereby forfeited to the United States, and the United States hereby resemes title States, and the Officer states hereby resemes the thereto, all laws heretofore granted to any state or to any corporation to aid in the construction of a railroad opposite to and coterminus with the position of any such railroad not now completed and in operation, for the construction or benefit of which such lands were granted; and all such lands are to be declared to be part of the public domain; provided, that this act shall not be construed as forfeiting the right of way or station grounds of forfeiting the right of way or station grounds of any rairoad company heretofore granted.

Mr. Morgan opposed the report as a log-rolling scheme, gotten up for the benefit of all land-grant roads. He said that while the first section professed to be a forfeiture, all the other sections related to separate railroads, and exempted them from the operation of the forfeiture section or else secured to them cer-over 1889. Most of this increase has been in operation of the forfeiture section or else secured to them certain pecuniary advantages. It could scarcely be said that there was any land forfeited by the bill to the government in consequence of the failure of railroads to comply with the terms of the original grants. The most that could be said of it was that a few small railroads that had not friends enough in the two houses to stand up for them, and hold up their hands were to be crucified for the sake of glossing over and varnishing the false pretense of general forfeiture.

After speaking for over four hours, Mr. Morgan said that he knew that the questions which he had been discussing were going to their grave in the passage of the bill, but that he had desired to give them a decent burial. He had wished to erect a headstone over the graves of the rights of the people on the line of the Northern Pacific, so that the historic record might be read hereafter. He had wanted to remind the people of the United States of the vast robbery perpetrated by the company and which was now sanctioned, wound up and brought to a conclusion by the bill. He knew when the republicans came in on one side of the report with the democrats refusing to sign it what the result would be. Whenever the bill was passed, the forfeiture of the Northern Pacific milroad lands would be dead and buried, and brought to a conclusion by the bill. He knew when the republicans came in on one side of the report with the democrats refusing to sign it what the result would be. Whenever the bill was passed, the forfeiture of the Northern Pacific railroad lands would be dead and buried, and passed, the forfeiture of the Northern Pacific railroad lands would be dead and buried, and nothing more would be heard about it.

Without finishing his speech, Mr. Morgan yielded for a motion to adjourn at 5:30 o'clock.

GEN. BARRUNDIA'S FAMILY EXILED. To Be Driven from Guatemala in Deference to Minister Mizner's Wishes. ence to Minister Mizner's Wishes.

CITY OF GUATRMALA, September 7.—The Barilias government has just decided to exile the daughter of General Barrundia, who attempted the life of Minister Mizner. This is done out of deference to Mizner's wishes. He does not want her prosecuted. It is reported that all of Barrunda's relatives are to be exiliced also, including Dr. Ramon Benjeechea, a son-in-law of the deceased general.

President Baril'as, who has of late denied himself to all visitors, today granted a reporter an audience.

"What were your relations, Mr. President,

"What were your relations, Mr. President, with General Barrundia?"

"Do you mean my own personally or those of my government?"

"Hoth, if they differ in any respect."

"My own personal relations with General Barrundia daring the last five years," replied the president, "have been somewhat limited, as he has been in exile since April, 1881, when he tred to usurp my piace as president when Barrios was killed and when Sini Baldi resigned the presidency, thus leaving me as his legitimate successor. Nationally speaking, Barrundia was the author of many of the crimes charged to Barrios. The people here hated him. His death is viewed with satisfaction by both government and people."

"In what light does your government look upon the seizure of General Barrundia on board of the Acapulco?"

"First, our contract with the Pacific Mail gives us the right to seize contraband of war; second, the steamer was in Guatemalan waters and amenable to our jurisdiction; third, if there had been any doubt as to the authority of the Guatemaian government to arrest Barrundia, who was a traiter to his country, apart of the Guatemaian government to arrest Bar-rundia, who was a traitor to his country; apart from his political and other crimes, the Amer-ican minister would have requested us to de-sist, which he did not; fourth, Barrundia was a Guatemaian citizen, and was within the reach of Guatemaian laws; and tinally, he would have had to stand his trial if he had

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

BAILROAD STOCKS.

NEW YORK, September 11.-The stock market today was unusually active, sales of listed stocks reaching 207.333 shares, and in the unlisted de-partment 83,057. But the increased business was obtained at the expense of values in all portions of the list, and material losses were suffered in all active shares. There was today an undoubted full Equidation of small marginal accounts, for which the only inducement was scarcity and high rates exacted for money, and for shifting of loans, occasioned by the selling in of money loaned at lower rates, brought considerable long stock on the market. At the same time the bears were again very prominent in getting prices down, and made a special point of the poor showing of the govern-ment crop report, and granger stocks did not suf-fer to a marked extent, but not more than the other stocks, which are not to be affected to such an extent by a scarcity of corn and wheat to haul. The Stocks also which scored the greatest decline were Chicago Gas, Sugar Refineries and North Amer-ican, which could in no way be affected by those considerations. The money market was undoubt-edly a great disappointment, to the smaller bulls at least, and the rate on call having gotten up to ½ per cent per diem and interest, notwithstandall efforts of the treasury department for its relief, liquidation became general. The presenta-tion of bonds at the sub-treasury for prepayment of interest was very large, interest being paid upon $25,000,000 registered bonds, while $32,000 was paid on coupons $241,000 4½ per cents were redeemed. This late in the day again restored something like confidence, but it failed to cause a rally of anything like the proportions of previous declines. The suddenness of the advance in rates for call loans gave rise to many accusations of manipulation, which were directed at several dif-ferent points, but there is no real proof of any-thing of the kind. Early London quotations were all materially lower, and our market responded with declines of from ½ to % per cent at the open-ing. The pressure upon the list was steady, but little progress was made during the forenoon, and less done was moderate. After that time, however, special attention was given Chicago Gas and Sugar Refineries, and each of them was quickly let off 6 per cent on extremely large trans-actions. The recent supposed arrangement between the city authorities and the company was denied, and an opposition company, which would furnish gas at 50 cents per 1,000 feet, was said to be ready for business. At the same time the manipulation of both these properties was most apnipulation of both these properties was most ap-parent, but the rapid declines had their effect upon the rest of the market and everything fell away materially, reaching the lowest point to-ward 2 o'clock p. m. Extreme activity then died away and prices recovered slowly, and leaders rose about 1½ per cent. While the improvement in others was confined to fractional amounts only, North American was one of the features, and, with the other two stocks mentioned, was rattled with the other two stocks mentioned, was rattled off 3 per cent, rallying only a fraction. Declines however, extended right through the list, the sears being most impartial in their favors. The narket finally closed quiet and fairly steady, but ti only a slight improvement over the lowest brices of the day.

Exchange active but heavy at 4821/84.851/2.

Money tight, ranging from 1/4 and interest to 6; ast loan and closing offered at 6.

GRAIN, PROVISIONS, ETC. CONSTITUTION OFFICE,

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, September 11—[Special]—The course of the cotton market today has been a genuine surprise. Reflection over night seemed to convince the majority of operators that, though the bureau report was a disappointment to the more sanguine bulls, it was not to be regarded as a bear argument; and that in consequence the indicated sanguine bulls, it was not to be regarded as a bear argument; and that in consequence the indicated supply was barely more than 7,500,000 bales, and not in excess of the probable consumption. The result is, that though Liverpool opened 4 points lower and receipts continue very heavy, this market has been very steady the entire day and closes firm at top prices. The southern markets are in the main steady, although Savannah and Norfolk are 1-16c lower. The stock in New York continues very light, and spot quotations here have been advanced again today to 10 11-16c. Higher prices seem probable tomorrow unless Liverpool is very disappointing. Crop accounts continue in an unfavorable strain.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, September 11—Wheat—Active trading, market excited and the closing 4c higher than yesterday. The opening was very unsettled and greatly excited with sales varying 1/2@1c in different parts of the crowd, and ranged 2@46 higher than yesterday's closing, followed by a further ad-vance of 1@11/2c, or to 108% for December and 110% for May, or some 51/2.61% above inside figures touched Tuesday. Later the market eased off, declining ½3%,0, held firm and closed about 4c higher. The advance was attributed to the government report. The report, while expected to show a further decrease, proved rather a surprise posed that spring wheat would show a lower aver-age, but this was hardly looked for in winter wheat, and the decline in both makes a reduction in the total crop of about 19 million bushels as compared with the August report. Trading was very heavy, both on outside and local account, and everybody wanted to buy at the start. Shorts covered freely with heavy realizing on the top. On the way up offerings were not heavy, and the short interest experienced some difficulty in executing their orders without bidding the market up. Some large lines were covered.

Corn was active and excited most of the session. price changes being sharp and frequent within an irregular range. The feeling developed was much stronger and higher prices the rule on all futures, due almost exclusively to the government report. The first trades were at 1@2c advance without much being offered, and under active buying from shorts and for investment another bulge of 1c immediately followed. There was free realizing by local longs around 51c, and prices receded %c, rallied, selling up 1%c, ruled steady and closed with a gain of 31/24c. Business was almost entirely in May, and several large short lines were covered. Reported cold weather in the Canadian northwest helped the advance.

Oats An active business was transacted at a decidedly higher range of prices. The firmness and advance in prices were due to the government crop report. The first sales were at % c advance. A further appreciation of 1@1½c was recorded, and after several small fluctuations the market closed firm at outside figures. Mess pork—Trading was active, and the opening sales were made at 10@12½c advance. A temporary decline of 2½@5c was submitted to. Later prices rallied 30@40c, and the improvement was maintained at the close. Hard attracted very little attention. Prices ruled 71/2010c higher and closed comparatively steady at outside figures.

Short ribs-There was a fair buiness. The opening sales were at 5@10c advance, followed by a further improvement of 2½c. Later a reduction of 2½c was submitted to. Near the close prices rallied 5@7½c, closing at outside figures. rallied 5@7%c, closing at outside ngures.
